Leaders Gather In Paris to Rescue Germany

Germany Is to Meet Its Payrolls While Preventing Big Strike

Henderson, Stimson, Laval and Others To Meet in French Capital To-morrow To Find Way Out of Financial Crisis for Germany; Banks in Republic to Be Reopened To-morrow To Pay Salaries and Wages.

Canadian Press

Paris, July 15.—Premier Laval to-day announced a conference would be held at 11 a.m. to-morrow at the Ministry of the Interior, the conferees to include Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, Foreign Secretary of Great Britain, United States Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson, Foreign Minister of France, Brundage, and French Finance Minister Flandin, and Premier Laval.

This "conference of six" also will include the United States Ambassador, Walter E. Edge.

Berlin, July 15.—Germany will meet the mid-month payroll to-morrow. It was learned on excellent authority to-day, opening even the suspended Darmstadt and National Bank to pay out salaries.

Civil service salaries and payrolls of individual firms will be paid, it was learned. Unemployment doles and sick benefits also will be met.

A considerable number of private firms have payroll accounts with the Darmstadt Bank, which suspended payment at the beginning of the week. It and all the other banks temporarily closed by government decree yesterday are to be opened to-morrow, it was said.

STRIKE MOVES WATCHED
Berlin, July 15.—The Ministry of the Interior and police headquarters to-day discounted published reports that Communist elements planned to call a general strike in connection with the financial crisis in Germany.

Both declared such a move was quite unlikely and that it would be foredoomed to failure without the support of the Social Democrats. Authorities, however, were keeping the sharpest watch on the situation throughout the Reich.

Strong forces of uniformed men were being held in readiness to quell incipient disorders. A forewarning of trouble was seen in a riot yesterday at Dortmund, where thousands of jobless stormed the community welfare headquarters and then to the police station with police batons.

The government is well aware that the discontent of the jobless as well as the general tension since the collapse of the Darmstadt and National Bank have created a tempting situation for radicalism.

Age Pensions Measure Before Commons Soon

Resolution Listed For Early Discussion: Dominion To Pay 75 Per Cent

Canadian Press

Ottawa, July 15.—A resolution providing for an increase from 50 to 75 per cent in the federal contribution to old age pensions, has been placed on the order paper of the Commons by Premier Bennett.

The resolution calls for an amendment to the Old Age Pensions Act. It reads as follows:

"Resolved, that it is expedient to amend the Old Age Pensions Act by increasing the amount of the payment to the province for old age pensions from one-half to 75 per cent, of the net sum paid out during the preceding quarter by such province for pensions, and to provide for the examination and audit of expenditures in the province and the accounts relating thereto."

The plan to increase the federal payment for old age pensions was announced some time ago. This legislation implements that announcement.

MANY FARM FAMILIES TREK NORTH IN SASKATCHEWAN

Prince Albert, Sask., July 15.—Convinced by serial observations of the last few days it is possible to extend settlements from here in "fingers" leading into the forested northland, Major John Barnett, Deputy Minister of the Saskatchewan Natural Resources Department, announced here to-day on completion of his observation trip that men would be dispatched north with pack horses to make thorough surveys of certain areas.

From the air Major Barnett noted many likely-looking areas between here and Lac la Ronge, which he believes, will be suitable for settlement. He was not able to carry out the reconnaissance tour by air over the

Convention Sends Proposal For Home For Aged to Executive

Delegates To Enjoy Water and Motor Tours During Convention

The annual convention of the Royal Arcanum, in session this morning at the Empress Hotel, referred to the executive council a recommendation by Supreme Regent Harold C. Knoepfel that a home for aged members be established. The Supreme Regent suggested that the initial outlay be limited to $100,000, after telling of interest he had personally devoted towards selection of suitable sites from the 125 submitted.

Proposals for reorganization of the executive council were also presented to the convention by Mr. Knoepfel, who favored a maximum of nine members. He said that large sums could be saved in executive salaries by combining offices and declared that, while the membership had declined in recent years, the financial strength had greatly improved. An independent audit showing solvency to be 110.70 per cent as at the end of last year. The mortality last year was the lowest in fifteen years.

This afternoon the delegates were taken on a cruise through the Gulf on board the Ss. Princess Patricia. The party left at 2 o'clock and will return at 7 o'clock, after being the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Butchart at their Tod Inlet gardens.

No Street Car Service In Regina After Storm

Lightning Strikes Machinery in Powerhouse; Floods Damage Street Pavements; Streets Will Be Unlighted This Evening; Many Citizens Eat Cold Meals

Canadian Press
Regina, July 15.—With turbines and other valuable pieces of machinery in the Regina powerhouse being wiped dry by hand, the citizens to-day awaited a report on the extent of the damage done by the violent electric storm which swept this district yesterday evening and this morning. Officials estimated the losses would be found to total several thousand dollars.

As a result of the power break which came when a bolt of lightning was carried into the powerhouse by the power lines, the street car service was at a full stop to-day, a condition which was expected to last at least until Friday. Auxiliary gasoline engines were supplying power for the water department, with many private houses deprived of power for cooking and also light. Street lights will be out this evening.

With no gas, many citizens depend on electricity for cooking and hundreds of them went to work this morning on cold breakfasts and after cold baths.

GRAIN BENEFITS
The rainfall of .96 of an inch brought considerable benefit to the rural districts, where grain for seed was planted late, and to the city gardens and parks.

Wrecking crew to-day were at work on the powerhouse, which may have to be rebuilt, and repairs were being made to many downtown streets where wooden blocks in the paving were torn free from their bed and sent awash in the miniature rivers which gushed down the gutters.

One of Uncle Sam's biggest battleships, the U.S.S. Idaho, with 1,500 officers and bluejackets aboard, will visit Victoria for several days to participate in the Diamond Jubilee celebrations. SEATTLE MAYOR SCORES ACCUSER

Considering Impeachment Proceedings Against Alderman Nichols

Seattle, July 15.—Striking back at Councilman Ralph Nichols, who yesterday asked for a grand jury to inquire into rumors of a police $15,000 "slush fund," Mayor Robert Harlin, who was named by Nichols as the reported beneficiary of the fund, to-day indicated he was considering impeachment proceedings against his accuser.

"I consider Nichols' attack uncalled for and a deliberate attempt to besmirch me and slander me," Harlin announced. "I am going to meet with other councilmen to determine if council rules against slander were not violated, and to discuss possible impeachment of Nichols."

Harlin, who had been chairman of the council, was named mayor yesterday after the council had been officially notified of Mayor Frank Edwards' recall in a special election Monday. Nichols sought to delay Harlin's election until an investigation could be made of "underground" rumors members of the police department had been assessed to raise a fund to insure reelection of Harlin. FREE HAND FOR DELEGATES AT TRADE MEETING

Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt Delegates Leave For Up-island Meeting

Saanich Has Resolutions Seeking Action on Light Wines

With instructions to use their own discretion on all resolutions put before the sessions, delegates from the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Saanich Board of Trade and Esquimalt Board of Trade to the annual convention of the Associated Board of Trade of Vancouver Island left this afternoon to attend the opening banquet in Duncan this evening.

Two resolutions will be brought up by the Saanich delegates for discussion at the business sessions which open to-morrow morning. The first of these advocates the sale of light wines manufactured on the island without the necessity of having a purchaser buy a permit, and the second seeks the sale of light wines in beer parlors.

The other lower island delegates will have no definite suggestions to make.

LOCAL DELEGATION
R. W. Mayhew, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, accompanied by James Parfitt, vice-president, and George L. Warren, general secretary, left this afternoon shortly after lunch to represent the city. There is a possibility other members may attend the sessions to-morrow.

Reeve Wm. Crouch headed the Saanich party, which included Rev. Montague Bruce, president of the Board of Trade, W. O. Wallace, and Captain Babbington.

Captain R. P. Matheson was the only Esquimalt delegate who got away this afternoon, but Frank Cook and R. Blight will follow in the morning.

PROGRAMME
To-night the delegates will be guests at a banquet in the Commercial Hotel. To-morrow the business of the meeting will be well under way and resolutions will be discussed.

A visit to the seed farm of the James Brothers, where luncheon will be served, will be made to-morrow.

Among the resolutions to be considered are various suggestions regarding unemployment, the coal industry, preservation of game and the fisheries of general interest to the island.

Local Shot Scores Two Possibles at 200 and 500-yard Ranges and Drops Lone Point at 600; Will Be Awarded Bronze Medal for Feat; 995 Leading Marksmen From All Parts of Empire in Contest To-day; Second Stage Will Be Fired To-morrow, With Final on Saturday.

FRENCH-SOVIET TRADE IS PUT ON OLD BASIS

Paris, July 15.—Regular economic relations between France and Soviet Russia will be established to-morrow by publication of two decrees simultaneously in Paris and Moscow.

Such a score had been returned only five times previously, and last year's bronze medalist won it with 102.

The first stage of the biggest event on the National Rifle Association's programme saw close to 1,000 crack rifle shots competing. They fired seven shots at 200, 500 and 600 yards.

The British Columbia man returned a perfect 35 at 200 yards, another perfect 35 at 500 and lost a single point out of 35, at the longest distance.

The 300 best scores to-day will go into the second stage on Friday, which will cut the field to 100 for Saturday's final. To-day's scores do not count except in so far as they determine the 300 best.

Lieut. Desmond Burke, Ottawa, who won the great prize in 1924, finished with a creditable total of 99 and was assured a place in the second stage. Burke had 32, 34 and 33 respectively.

Sergeant C. W. Foam and Major T. Spittal, Montreal, each finished with 99.

Scores of 98 were returned by Corporal Sergeant-Major Russell and Sergeant J. H. Gray, Toronto.

RICHARDSON HAS 97
Quartermaster-Sergeant Moore, St. John; Major Richardson, Victoria, and Sergeant J. L. Ward of Sunnybrae, New Brunswick, returned 97s.

Corporal K. Bird, Regina, scored 95. A score of 94 was returned by Alex. Martin, formerly of Calgary.

Sergeant-Major E. J. Read, Victoria, scored 92, and Lieut.-Col. Letson, Vancouver, not a member of the team, 91.

LARGE FIELD
To-day's field numbered 995. They came from all parts of Great Britain and from far distant parts of the empire. Youths and octogenarians, men who had won the Victoria Cross and women who had driven ambulances, started on the long grind.

Canada sent its full team of eighteen shooting members into the fray, led by Lieut. Desmond Burke of Ottawa, who won the King's Prize in 1924. Canada has captured it six times since the trophy was instituted at the N.R.A.'s first meeting in 1860.

Among the important field were a dozen other King's Prize winners—Miss Marjorie Foster, 1930, the only woman to win it; Sergt. Lawrence, 1882; G. E. Fulton, 1888, and his son, A. G. Fulton, 1913 and 1926; H. O. Burr, 1909; J. L. Dewar, 1914; J. Cunningham, 1921; A. F. Marchmont, 1922; E. H. Robinson, 1923; Sapper Smith, 1925; C. H. Vernon, 1927, and Lance-Corpl. A. C. Ottawa, July 15.—The Senate this afternoon passed through committee the bill providing for the appointment of a tariff board and it stands for third reading.

During to-day's discussion an amendment to make the tenure of office of the members of the new Tariff Board five years instead of ten was moved by Senator Dandurand, Liberal leader, seconded by Rt. Hon. George P. Graham.

Senator G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, defended the ten-year term, declaring it necessary to secure the best men for the post.

The amendment was defeated 35 to 30 by a standing vote which followed party lines. The Liberal senators supported the amendment and the Conservatives opposed it.

Second Move of Sort

Hongkong, July 15.—A second financial fraud was discovered to-day at Canton, where officials, allegedly conspiring with printers, over-issued recent $10,000,000 block of bonds to an extent variously estimated at from $2,000,000 to $10,000,000. Several arrests were made.

The irregular issuance of $100,000 worth of notes by a municipal bank was discovered yesterday and two of its officials were arrested. The government promised to redeem the irregular notes.

13,000 CHANGE SIDES
The new Canton government to-day charged that Nationalist President Chiang Kai-shek had inducted into his army 13,000 Reds who had been captured recently. The Cantonese also accused Chiang of having bribed Communists to stir up trouble in Kwangtung province, which is under the new southern regime.

A Chinese language newspaper said the Canton government, organized in opposition to Chiang and his Nationalist regime, was stirring up trouble in a climax in politico-military affairs and had proposed the launching of an immediate attack on Hunan province in the hope of encouraging neutral elements throughout China to declare themselves on one side or the other.

Bennett Makes Statement After McDougald Declines Committee's Invitation

Ottawa, July 15.—That the government was considering whether it would introduce legislation within a fortnight compelling the attendance of witnesses for examination of whether it would deal by way of a royal commission with a "serious situation," which had arisen in committee to-day, was stated in a statement made by Premier Bennett, stated to the Commons this afternoon. The reference of the Prime Minister was to the Beauharnois committee sitting. Senator W. L. McDougald, Montreal, though counsel, declined to testify at the investigation.

The Prime Minister made his statement when asked by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, whether further legislation would be introduced during this session.

Premier Bennett said there would be an amendment to the Red Cross Act and certain bills bearing on the tariff changes announced in the budget. The Prime Minister had nothing further to say on the matter at the moment.

The relief and unemployment funds will be administered by a committee of three men in each province.

Germany's Trade Balance Favorable For Half Year

Berlin, July 15.—Germany's favorable trade balance for the first six months of this year was $18,000,000 marks (roughly $204,800,000).

Official trade figures made public to-day showed imports of 3,700,000,000 marks ($25,000,000) and exports of 4,518,000,000 ($1,128,500,000), exclusive of reparations in kind, which amounted to 250,000,000 marks ($2,500,000) in the month of June alone.

PRAIRIE PROVINCIAL WHEAT BOARD IS NEW PLAN SUGGESTED

Winnipeg, July 15.—Prairie people looked about to-day for the solution of the tangled wheat pool problem, with the oft-suggested Dominion board definitely ruled out as a possibility. Premier John Bracken of Manitoba yesterday stated Premier Bennett had written from Ottawa, saying the Dominion Government did not see its way clear to make such a move.

M.P.'S REJECT INTEREST BILL FOR BANK LOANS

Ottawa, July 15.—By a big majority the Commons yesterday rejected a bill which would have limited the interest rate on bank loans to 7 per cent, and would have provided severe penalties for any infringement. It was sponsored by H. E. Spencer, U.P.A., Battle River, but fewer than six members—the minimum number to force a recorded vote—supported the measure when a verbal division took place on the second reading.

Only a faint response greeted the Speaker when he called for a showing from those supporting the bill, the loss of no time in declaring it defeated.

Mr. Spencer had suggested the bill be referred to a Commons committee which might study the proposed penalties. This suggestion, however, was turned down when the bill was defeated.

A SOUND INDUSTRY

A review of the apple industry throughout Canada just issued by the fruit branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture contains the following observation:—"During the present period of depressed prices when many agricultural products have fallen to values considerably below cost of production, the apple stands out as having maintained a reasonable price level in spite of fairly high production, adverse economic conditions and heavy competition in overseas markets. The industry is fundamentally sound and provided the best methods of cultivation, control of pests, preparation for market and orderly merchandizing, are practiced, there should be no reason for pessimism and the industry should develop and keep pace with natural progress."

TORONTO DEATH

Toronto, July 15.—William Banks Jr., local author and newspaperman, and former member of The Toronto Globe staff, died yesterday.

ONTARIO CHERRIES AT LOW PRICE TAKE PRAIRIE TRADE

Advice received by the Department of Agriculture to-day from prairie points suggest that Ontario Montmorency cherries are filling the need of Manitoba and selling at 85 cents per six-quart basket. This works out at $1.70 per crate. Vancouver Island has five or six cars of Olivett and Morello cherries to move and it may be necessary to meet this price to move them, the Department says.

SENATORS ARE TO BE HEARD ON BEAUHARNOIS

Ottawa, July 15.—The Senate, without discussion, yesterday complied with the request of the Commons that Senators Haydon, McDougall and Raymond be permitted to appear before the Commons committee investigating the Beauharnois power project, if they should see fit. It had been rumored there might be some objection raised in the Senate to granting the request, but none developed.

CITIZENSHIP BILL DELAYED

Ottawa, July 15.—The bill defining Canadian nationality, which has already received second reading in the Commons, is not to be proceeded with this session. This information was given yesterday in the House by Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State, in response to a question from Hon. Fernand Rinfret, former Liberal Secretary of State. Although the bill was probably generally approved, not only in Parliament but in the country, Mr. Cahan said, it had been found desirable to postpone its passing for another year. Before it could be made law, it was desirable certain modifications should be made in the immigration laws.

Commons Rejects Free Speech Bill

Ottawa, July 15.—Ending a somewhat troublesome course, a bill sponsored by James S. Woodsworth, Labor member for Winnipeg—North Centre, "to safeguard the rights of free speech" was defeated in the Commons yesterday evening. There was no recorded division, but on a testing of those favorable and those opposed. Speaker Black judged the bill to be defeated.

Calgary, July 15.—Future policy of the Alberta Wheat Pool probably will not be decided on until Premier J. E. Brownlee returns from the inter-provincial conference to be held at Regina on Thursday.

Ottawa, July 15.—A bill to amend the Immigration Act so no deportation could be carried out of a person who has lived in Canada for ten years was declared lost on second reading in the Commons yesterday evening, when no one rose to address the House. The bill was sponsored by J. S. Woodsworth, Labor, Winnipeg North Centre.

PEACE DESIRED BY MUSSOLINI

Has Backing of Italian People in Move for Disarmament, Says Consul

Winnipeg, Man., July 15.—Mussolini is genuinely desirous for peace, the Consul General for Italy at Ottawa, Count Delfino Di Villanova, Italian Consul General for Canada at Ottawa, stated on arrival in Winnipeg over the lines of the Canadian National Railways. Count Villanova, accompanied by his wife, is on the first transatlantic visit to the Italian communities of the Dominion undertaken by an Italian Consul.

In speaking of the concessions made by Italy at the London Naval Conference, Count Villanova stated that his country is still prepared to consider further reductions in armament on the basis of equality. Economic conditions have no bearing on Italy's attitude toward peace, at the country, agriculturally and industrially, is in a well balanced condition, he said.

Count Di Villanova became Consul General for Canada a year ago, following service as Consul in the Italian Embassy at London. He has also been on consular duty at Washington, Berlin, Bern, and Prague, and was a member of the Italian delegation at the Versailles Peace Conference.

Count Di Villanova will visit Saskatoon, Edmonton, Jasper Park Lodge, Vancouver, Calgary and Regina on his trip in the west.

Fewer Telephones, More Shareholders

New York, July 15.—Total revenues of American Telephone were about 1 per cent below last year's level, the report of President Gifford to-day shows. The company now has approximately 600,000 shareholders, an increase of 33,000 since the first of the year. Bell system dropped 100,000 telephones, or two-thirds of 1 per cent of those in service, in the first five months. Long distance calls dropped 3 per cent.

AGED MAN OF PAPER'S STAFF ENDS HIS LIFE

New York, July 15.—J. H. Ballard, eighty-two, editorial writer on The New York World-Telegram, committed suicide in his apartment yesterday evening by shooting himself through the temple. Mrs. Ballard, seventy-six, received a cut on the head as she fell when her husband rushed into the bathroom and said: "I'm not going alone. I'm going to take you with me." Ballard, one of the oldest active newspapermen in New York, was a personal friend of John D. Rockefeller. He had been a Telegram editorial writer more than thirty years. He introduced the paragraphing style of editorial comment on the evening Bennett Edition.

JACK DIAMOND FREED OF CHARGE

Troy, N.Y., July 15.—Jack (Legs) Diamond, gangster chief, was acquitted yesterday evening of assault on Grover Parks, Catskill Mountain truck man, who contended he was beaten and tortured when he refused to reveal the location of a still. He blamed Diamond and his gang.

Vancouver Store Owner Robbed

Vancouver, July 15.—H. J. Stewart, proprietor of Broughton Confectionery, on Robson Street, was held up just as he was closing his store twenty minutes before last midnight and robbed of about $10, police report. Stewart said two men drove up in an old car. They alighted and entered, one covered him with a revolver while the other bandit rifled the till.

A LIVE STOCK SAFEGUARD

With official confirmation of outbreaks of the dread foot and mouth disease in England, Scotland and Ireland, it has become necessary for the Dominion Department of Agriculture to exercise the powers conferred upon it under and by virtue of the Animal Contagious Diseases Act, and cancel all permits issued for the importation of cattle, sheep, goats and other ruminants, and swine from the countries infected with foot and mouth disease. While shipments usually embarked as on the date of the official order, June 20, 1931, will be allowed to proceed to Canadian points, the issue of permits has been held up for an indefinite period.

HOBBY SHOTS MIRROR

WHEAT QUOTA PLANS DEBATED IN BRITAIN

London, July 15.—British farmers are pressing on the government the need for an early decision on the wheat quota question. The farmers and the farm workers' unions have agreed, it is understood, that should the government establish a quota no further attempts will be made by the farmers to lower the present wages nor to extend the working hours.

R. H. Harlin Is Named Mayor By Seattle Council

Seattle, July 15.—Within twenty hours after Mayor Frank Edwards had been recalled by Seattle voters, Robert H. Harlin, president of the City Council, was elected president of the city by the council amid the bandying of charges that a "slush fund" had been raised to insure his being chosen.

During the day, J. D. Ross, former superintendent of the city light department, out of whose dismissal by Edwards the recall election grew, was also reinstated by the council. His resignation had been promised before the election.

The election of Harlin was by a five to three vote, with Harlin himself ineligible to vote. Councilman Philip Tindale was elected president of the council to succeed Harlin, and David Levine, president of the Central Labor Council, was named to fill the vacant council seat.

Summonsed to the meeting Harlin, who had been absent, vigorously denied the "slush" charge of a slush fund. He said, if he were elected, he would discharge every employee of former Mayor Frank Edwards, including Louis J. Forbes, present chief of police.

MORATORIUM FOR FARMERS URGED

Kansas City, Kas., July 15.—A debt moratorium for wheat farmers is being proposed in the southwest, where harvest time, usually the season of plenty, finds farmers in despair over the unprecedented low prices offered for their crops.

Instead of the "government" sponsors of the moratorium are looking to bankers, farm implement companies and merchants to give them a respite from the bill collectors.

The hope is that if creditors will hold off even thirty days, or better, sixty or ninety days, wheat prices can be increased by saving the farmer from the necessity of selling his product at existing prices, which are as low as twenty-five cents a bushel at some country marketing points.

HUDSON'S BAY NOT SELLING ANY STORES

New Governor and Directors Coming to Canada to Look Over Operations

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Correspondent
London, July 15.—Although redrafting its financial arrangements in order to meet present conditions, the Hudson's Bay Company has no intention of selling any of its departmental stores in Canada. It is stated in the annual report of the board, which will be submitted to the proprietors July 20. The company sustained a trading loss of $2,831,670 in the financial year ended May 31 last, and expects the land, store and fur-trading operations during the present year will be carried on at a loss.

Deducted from the trading loss of last year is the balance of $7,445 carried forward from the year before and $1,500,000 from the dividend equalization account, leaving a balance of $2,234,225, which has been eliminated by a transfer of funds from the share premiums account.

The excess of payments over receipts on the land account (after crediting a reserve of $60,000 previously set aside for land settlement and advertising, and a $98,000 balance from the year before) amounted to $241,105. This loss has been eliminated by a transfer from the sales shops extension account, the reserve of which was provided out of the land account in 1919.

In addition the board of directors decided to make provision with respect to the following items:
(a) After most careful consideration of the company's investments, the bulk of which are in Canada, and in view of the abnormal conditions prevailing in Canada, $2,344,000 is provided against the capital value of shares in and advances to subsidiary, associated and other companies.

(b) $1,484,800 is provided against the building, etc., sinking fund account, which is now renamed the buildings, etc., depreciation account.

RUMORS IN CANADA

The annual report states the new governor and some members of the board have arranged to visit Canada in the immediate future.

"In view of constant rumors in Canada," the report adds, "that the board is contemplating the sale of the company's store, we take this opportunity of stating there is no intention of doing so."

The board wishes to make it clear that the provision made in the past for the sinking fund, was actually sound. They emphasize the fact that there are no debentures or other charges on the company's assets. In addition to the assets comprised in the balance sheet, other assets of potential value are represented by unsold land and outstanding instalments, which stand at nil in the balance sheet.

FEEDER SPREAD ON LAMBS

An average spread of $1.54 between the cost of feeder lambs and the price at which they sell is necessary for profit, according to a table of production costs appearing in the current issue of The Economic Annalist, official organ of the agricultural economics branch of the Department of Agriculture. These figures were obtained from a close study of conditions reported by sixteen representative feeders in Southern Alberta. The two most efficient of this group of feeders kept operating costs down to thirty-eight cents per head, while the two least efficient showed a spread of $2.64 per head. For the average feeder to make a profit he must sell his lambs at not less than $1.54 per head over their cost to him as feeders.

THE GREAT CONVERSION

WHATEVER RECEPTION THE Department of Marine at Ottawa may give to the application of the city for foreshore rights on the harbor adjoining its lot on Erie Street, we probably have heard the last from that quarter of the "menace to shipping" in the "congested area" involved in the operation of seaplanes in Victoria Harbor. Since Montreal underwent its miraculous conversion and no longer fears for the safety of the "hundreds of small yachts," for which Mr. Beatty was so solicitous, as well as the millions of dollars worth of large surface ships, Ottawa, which already has reversed itself several times on this question, may be expected to do so again.

The conversion in these quarters has been so complete indeed that apparently they feel it is quite safe, even during the months when the harbor is busiest with shipping, for seaplanes to operate right up to the causeway. A few weeks ago we were informed that it was nothing short of calamitous for aircraft to operate even in the outer basin of the harbor; in fact, that this whole business would have to move to Esquimalt, which through the front-page activities of Mr. Plunkett, M.P., had been finally pried open for the use of these craft.

The purpose of the city in applying for the foreshore alongside of its lot on Erie Street is to protect itself from any more of the double-shuffling of which it has been the victim, and which up to the present has deprived it of an airplane base which would have involved an expenditure of more than $200,000 and the employment of a considerable staff. It wants to be in a position to offer its Erie Street lot for such an establishment with the assurance that nobody within or without the city with a private axe to grind will be able to prevent its development.

We presume, of course, that Mr. Plunkett, Victoria's member at Ottawa, also has been converted as to the desirability of Victoria Harbor being used for seaplane purposes, following the discovery that in some magic way, in the twinkling of an eye, it has been transformed from a "congested port" with no leeway for anything but large ships and "hundreds of private yachts" into an area so commodious that the excellent service recently inaugurated is able to deliver its passengers almost at the very door of the Empress Hotel or the Parliament Buildings.

Prior to this miracle, notwithstanding the representations of the City Council, Chamber of Commerce, the service clubs, even the Victoria Conservative Association, Mr. Plunkett took the Montreal view, and in one unforgettable communication to the Chamber of Commerce intimated that it was useless for anybody to press further for a reversal of the government's attitude: Ottawa was adamant, Victoria Harbor was unsafe for seaplane purposes, and that was all there was to it. His only articulate support in Victoria came from the morning paper, which, it is interesting to note, no longer in its editorial columns vigorously assails the use of the harbor for seaplane purposes. It is too much to hope that it, too, shares in the Great Modern Conversion, and that it no longer sees any danger to important special interests in the use of the harbor by seaplanes?

This is not the first time Mr. Plunkett and his journalistic mentor have been left "holding the bag" with yawning holes in it, in regard to matters of public interest. They took sides with Mr. Bennett against Dr. Tolmie and the majority sentiment of this province on the salmon treaty, and suddenly found themselves abandoned by their leader, who was persuaded by Dr. Tolmie to see the error of his ways. If Mr. Plunkett will bear in mind the salient fact that he is the representative of Victoria in the House, that his duty is to promote the interests of his constituents at all times, whether they are in accord with those of big corporations or not, he will escape such predicaments as the one in which he now finds himself.

BUSINESS MUST BE GONE AFTER

COUNTRIES MAY AGREE TO TRADE with one another under mutually advantageous terms and assist their respective producers by certain tariff arrangements. But there is very little else governments can do. Beyond this point the business of buying and selling rests with the exporters and importers and the consuming public generally.

The Australian market has been opened under favorable terms to a large variety of Canadian products in return for certain concessions granted to the southern Dominion by Canada. What this country makes of the new treaty, what Australia makes of it, remains to be seen. It is certain, however, that if this Dominion is to get the fullest advantage out of the arrangement, it will be necessary for our producers to go after the new business, which should be theirs, as if they really wanted it. It will not come to them. They will have to tell the Australian people why it is to their advantage to patronize the Canadian product in preference to the foreign product. They will have to make their goods popular by constant advertising and by such other means as the circumstances may require.

The same applies to Australia. The terms of the agreement obviously are considered by the southern Dominion as favorable to the expansion of her business with this country. She must bear in mind, however, that comparatively little is known in Canada about a number of the commodities that now will enjoy a tariff advantage when they arrive at our ports. In other words, the exporters of both Dominions will have to advertise their wares more energetically than ever because other countries that will now be placed at a disadvantage will try to retain their business with every means at their command.

GETTING RID OF A MAYOR

IN SEATTLE LAST MONDAY THE PEOPLE voted to recall Mayor Frank Edwards because of what was considered incompetence in office. It was a significant incident, since Mr. Edwards had been twice elected by the largest majorities ever recorded by a candidate for that office. Yet his recall was authorized by a higher adverse percentage of votes than had favored him in either of his two successful campaigns. Councilman Robert H. Harlin was elected to finish out the remainder of Mr. Edwards' term. The recall system which operates in Seattle's civic politics provides that on petition of a sufficient number of taxpayers the City Council must hold a vote.

The trouble in the municipal arena began when Mayor Edwards dismissed Mr. J. D. Ross from his position as superintendent of City Light, and civic politics immediately began to sizzle. Mr. Ross is now back again in the post of which he was relieved, and the public conscience no doubt is more or less satisfied, except perhaps that section of it which may think Mr. Edwards was harshly treated.

Commenting on the recall and its cause, The Seattle Post-Intelligencer says in part: "If the result of the recall is rightly taken as a warning that the people of Seattle do not want and will not tolerate any political tinkering and tampering with City Light or any other municipal utilities, Monday's election may be regarded as the most important in the city's history." It also says that for some time past there has been a gradual edging over on the part of some Seattle officials, executive and legislative, to a position contrary to the public interest in these utilities. They were read: "It was as if these officials were trying to find out just how much sniping against City Light the people would stand for." Monday's answer seems to have removed any doubt they may have had.

Incidentally, the City of Seattle owns its own lighting service, as well as its street railway system, and apparently has little use for the enemies of public ownership.

NOT A FAIR PROPOSAL

IF THE LATE GOVERNMENT AT Ottawa had attempted to create a tariff board and give it a life of ten years we can imagine what the members of the party now in office would have said. Yet they are trying to justify Mr. Bennett's proposal to do this very thing because, according to them, the Tariff Advisory Board which Mr. Bennett dismissed as soon as he got in the saddle was essentially a low-tariff body. Be that as it may; but it is seriously to be expected that the government's appointees to the Board for which the bill before Parliament provides will be other than men who can be relied upon to reflect the high tariff views of Mr. Bennett and his colleagues? We should say not.

The principle in the bill to which Mr. King and opposition members are strenuously hostile, of course, is that implying that were a Liberal government elected to office before the expiry of the Board's ten-year term, it would be helpless to interfere with its operations, though it persisted in making recommendations on tariff matters that were at complete variance with the government's own ideas on the matter. And since Mr. Bennett asks Parliament to pass legislation which will thrust a body upon the country to serve the policies of the party which he leads, he must expect such a procedure to be added to the number of election topics that will be discussed on the public platform when the time comes for the government to give an account of its stewardship.

Mr. Bennett's proposal, indeed, goes deeper than this. Does it not amount almost to an attempt to disfranchise the public as far as tariff views are concerned? In any case, as a contemporary reminds us, if the late Tariff Advisory Board was the creature of the Liberal administration, and thus not to be retained by a Conservative ministry, elementary political fairness would concede the same point of view to the opposition.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

THE FOUR BIG ONES
The Detroit News

John Galsworthy, author de luxe, undertakes to name the great American novels, and mentions only four: "The Scarlet Letter," "McTeague," "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer." None of these is recent, none is in the modern manner, and their selection will doubtless shock a dozen or so of our young authors who have each and all, to their own knowledge, written the greatest novel once a year ever since the war.

BETTER OFF THAN RUSSIA
The Ottawa Citizen

There is a serious shortage of skilled workers in Russia. It has lately been admitted by one of the leading representatives of Russian trade in the United States that the success of the five-year plan is menaced because about 2,000,000 more trained workers are needed.

Russian industry is being transformed from seventeenth century conditions to the twentieth century standard. This national reorganization cannot be carried out efficiently without more experienced technical craftsmen.

The process of training young Russian artisans is going forward. Many new schools have been established, but the schools need teachers. Education cannot be acquired overnight.

In an effort to remedy the industrial situation, the Soviet authorities this year are engaging about 3,000 engineers, 3,000 foremen, and between 7,000 and 8,000 skilled mechanics from abroad. About 4,500 foreign engineers are at present employed in the Soviet industries. Some have apparently found Russian employment far from satisfactory. The transition from the seventeenth to the twentieth century level of industry in five years is rather too much like working under war conditions.

Employment in the United States or Canada, when employment is to be found, is evidently more satisfactory. The plumbing is probably much better in Pittsburgh than in Stalingrad. Restaurants in Montreal have doubtless a more varied bill of fare than in Moscow. In North America there is, indeed, no such shortage of skilled labor, food, machinery or anything required to supply everyone with abundance. This favored part of the earth is much better off than Russia, excepting that millions of otherwise intelligent people are submitting to the doctrine of privation in an age of plenty.

Loose Ends

Why Government House is empty and the significance of its emptiness—how we have progressed in sixteen centuries—and why my apple tree is one apple short.

By H. B. W.

ACCORDING to a "highly-placed member" of the provincial government, the reason why a new lieutenant-governor has not been appointed for British Columbia is that no one who is fitted for the post will accept it. No one, or almost no one, says this government spokesman, quoted in The Vancouver Province, can afford the necessary expenditure of $50,000 a year on the entertainment of the nation's guests. And he suggests that if the nation wants its guests entertained it should put up the necessary money instead of leaving it to some private citizen. "Just as it should pay for the entertainment of visiting naval people at Esquimalt, instead of unloading this public service on the slim purse of its ill-paid naval officers."

THIS seems sound. You reply that the nation doesn't force the lieutenant-governor, or the officers, for that matter, to entertain anybody. But as a matter of fact, it is the nation, the public, which makes all such expensive entertainments necessary. It is the public, more than the nation's guests, which wants to see a brave show of place and low-backed evening frocks. It is the public which insists on the maintenance of ten miniature royal courts in this democratic country with all the fuss and front possible. The public revels in it, reads about it in the newspapers, gossips about it. But note this—the public doesn't want to pay for it and doesn't pay for more of it than necessary. The public prefers some private individual to do that, in return for the satisfaction of representing the King and conducting one of the ten miniature courts.

THIS is a satisfactory arrangement to the taxpayers so long as it works, but, according to the provincial government, it has ceased to work. No one in these times is in the humor to pay the bill for so inextricable a problem. The spokesman of the provincial government suggests that if the nation wants the glamor of near-royalty to continue it should be prepared to pay for it. Thus the public, apparently, is faced with a growing decision—whether to cut down on the gold lace, or pay more in taxes. My bet is, if it comes to such a choice, that the public will choose the gold lace at any cost. Even though a Canadian never gets past the outer gates of the nearest Government House there is a curious streak in the gold lace, reasoning vanity, which is flattered by the thought that inside those gates there is a brave show, lots of gold lace, plenty of secretaries with blue-lined dress suits, and a plethora of low-backed evening gowns. If this were a real something—what have been done about these things long ago.

THIS column, I fear, has been most unfair in criticizing people who take part in walkathons, stathons and all the other idiotic what-nots. After all, it is the public which should be blamed for this. Without the support of the public such things would be impossible. In Vancouver, indeed, where it was advertised that two of the competitors would be married while still walking, 4,000 people assembled to see the promised debasement of what is commonly regarded as a sacrament of the church and a solemn contract of civil law. As Mr. Pooley had forbidden the show, it did not occur in this fashion but was performed elsewhere and recorded by amplifiers to the assembled 4,000. The eagerness with which the assembled 4,000 listened to this revolting performance is an interesting indication of public intelligence. It serves to make one humble, to make one realize that it is only seventeen centuries or so since people assembled in the Roman amphitheatre to observe other people killing one another or being consumed by fire. After being married in public is not quite as offensive as being killed in public. As the transition from killing to marrying has only taken sixteen or seventeen centuries, you see we are progressing rapidly.

IN the midst of these speculations the little girl from next door was just demonstrated that I am worse than the public. I steal the food of defenceless infants. You see, the little girl from next door just appeared a few minutes ago from the neighborhood of my Yellow Transparent apple tree, whereon apples are just commencing to ripen. In her hand the little girl had a Yellow Transparent apple, not yet yellow, looking rather green. In each side of it was a large nick, such as does not come if a Yellow Transparent apple without the intervention of a sharp instrument like the teeth of a little girl. But when I asked her if she had been eating it, she denied the suggestion emphatically. Pointing a fat finger at her spotted dog, the eminent Nipper, she said with a touching sincerity, "Nipper, he did it—Nipper, he ate it twice."

Nipper cannot defend himself. Nipper grinned from ear to ear and wagged his tail. So I asked the little girl to hand the apple to me through the window. I am bound to say that the marks on it seemed to come from the two little white front teeth, not of Nipper, but of Nipper's mistress.

NOW GREEN apples, as you know, are bad for little girls. They give little girls colic-wobbles in their tummies. So I thought it only right and Christian to save her from colic-wobbles in her tummy by keeping the green apple. As soon as her back was turned I rendered up the full measure of devotion by eating the apple, taking the risk of the colic-wobbles myself and saving the

BURN KIRK'S COAL

"DOES LAST LONGER"

Little girl from any risk. And I think a Yellow Transparent apple, when just beginning to get ripe, the very first apple of the season, a little bitter, nibbled by Nipper and pecked at by a little girl, is a perfect proof of the good management of the universe.

REGULARIZATION OF EMPLOYMENT PROGRESS TOLD

Chamber of Commerce Finds Big Industrialists Readjust Production Schedules

Washington, July 15.—The subcommittee of the International Chamber of Commerce, which includes industrial leaders and highly qualified experts, has issued a report which states that the principal types of unemployment are seasonal, responsible for the major portion of unemployment in the long run, especially affecting manufacturing industries with their peak and dull seasons.

Cyclical, experienced in general business recessions such as the current one and reducing employment 12 to 18 per cent below corresponding seasons of more prosperous years and fighting in the per cent of factory employment from July, 1929, to January, 1931.

Technological, the displacement of employees by machinery referred to as a readjustment problem, which now causes a majority of affected workers to go for long periods without work, although theoretically a necessity for creating more jobs than it destroys.

MUST HALT FLUCTUATION

Regularization of employment "is achieved or approached by co-ordinating production and distribution policies so as to level out fluctuations in both in volume of output and total sales, the committee says. Next come personnel policies relating to employment security for individuals. The systematic sales forecasting is essential. Thus the Eastman Kodak Company solved the problem of a highly seasonal market so that in 1929 the number of its employees developed less than one per cent from the average number for the year. The policy is to schedule a comparatively constant volume of production for each month of the year, especially during winter months of valves and fittings, found it could be done with a twenty per cent cut during the July-August vacation season. The Walworth Company, makers of valves and fittings, found it could be done with a twenty per cent cut during the July-August vacation season. The Walworth Company, makers of valves and fittings, found it could be done with a twenty per cent cut during the July-August vacation season.

WORKERS BENEFIT
In 1919, the Proctor and Gamble Company, makers of soap, varied fifty-five per cent in the number of employees during the year. By selling to retailers, budgeting sales and co-ordinating production schedules it had reduced that to seven per cent in 1929 and guaranteed eight weeks continuous work each year to its permanent force. Simplification and standardization, in which great strides have been made by many concerns, has helped to stabilize production and employment.

The Campbell Soup Company, concentrating on soup but diversifying its products, reported that by making tomato soup in late summer and fall, vegetable soup, consommé and bouillon in fall and winter, asparagus soup in spring, pea and chicken soup in early summer and celery soup in early fall. Besides diversifying products, companies have often stimulated off-season purchases of their goods.

2-Inter-company transfer of employees.
3-Inter-company reserve funds.
4-Dismal wages and other financial assistance.

PREVENT LOSS OF INCOME
Such systems do not sustain purchasing power and proportionately reduce individual earnings, but do prevent complete loss of income for employees and save heavy expenses of recruiting and training new forces.

STABILIZATION OF EMPLOYMENT
In the 1927-28 business recession, three-fourths of companies whose methods were reported that they had resorted to working time reduction before laying anyone off. Even a larger proportion, it appears, did so in 1930. The Delaware and Hudson Railroad, with its elastic work day system, has cut its labor turnover seventy-eight per cent in nine years.

GRASSHOPPERS CONQUERED
Winnipeg, July 15.—The first grasshopper plague in Manitoba in a dozen years has been subdued, according to Hon. Albert Prefontaine, Minister of Agriculture. Poison distributed during the last six weeks in districts where the insects were most plentiful, has almost entirely exterminated the grasshoppers. He says the prompt action will prevent a recurrence next season.

EGG IMPORTS ARE DISCUSSED BY COMMONS

Bennett Promises Australia Will Not Dump in January and February.

Ottawa, July 15.—The Commons passed about fifty items in the tariff resolution and approved Post Office Department estimates amounting to $1,493,000 at yesterday afternoon's and evening's sittings.

When the members turned to the tariff question items in the budget affected by the Australian trade agreement and which had been held in abeyance previously, were considered in committee of ways and means.

The first item was live hogs—free—15 cents a cwt. The second, piglets, 15 cents a cwt. The third, piglets, 15 cents a cwt. The fourth, piglets, 15 cents a cwt. The fifth, piglets, 15 cents a cwt.

As long as eggs could be brought in from free Australia in January and February, it would be possible for enormous quantities to be shipped into Canada during those months and stored, said A. W. Nell, Independent, Comox-Alberni. Those were the months, he contended, during which the Canadian poultry dealers hoped to make up what they lost in other months.

The Prime Minister assured Mr. Nell there would be no dumping from Australia.

TEA RATES

Duties on tea had been changed, Mr. Bennett said. The former rates on imported direct from the country of growth and production were free, 9 and 10 cents. The duty now would be 4 and 5 cents. Tea, not otherwise provided for, still bore the same duty of 10 cents under the three classifications, but the added specific duty of 10 per cent had been removed.

The following items were then passed: Hops, 8, 16 and 16 cents per pound; starch, per pound, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 cents; 2-center powdered milk per pound, 2½, 3 and 5 cents.

Rice, uncleaned, unhusked or paddy, which is made free under the new Australian trade treaty, is now dutiable from other countries at rates 25, 25 and 25 per cent.

The next item approved was for seeds in packages of less than one pound, the new duties being 15, 20 and 25 per cent.

There were more items all affected by the Australian agreement were passed. They were: Passion fruit, free, 15 and 20 per cent; dried plum or prunes free, 10 per cent per pound and 1 cent; raisins and dried currants free, 4 cents per pound and 4 cents.

PEANUT IMPORTS

Australian peanuts, according to information received by him, were excellent, Hon. Mr. H. Stevens said when an item giving a preference to Australia was under discussion.

Mr. Bennett stated owners had advised that if they were assured of the whole Canadian market they could operate without higher prices.

The item then was approved, as was a similar item for trade-marked packages of insecticides at 15, 25 and 25 per cent.

AUTO DUTIES
After a protracted discussion, the House passed the new duties on automobiles and parts. Premier Bennett expressed the opinion they would result in lower prices among the light makes of cars.

B. C. PRODUCERS' POSITION

Vancouver, July 15.—Egg producers are stated to be concerned at the news that under the new treaty eggs from Australia will be admitted into Canada free during the months of January and February.

would hurt the British Columbia industry. He was unable to venture an opinion as to the possibility of exporting eggs to Australia during the Canadian peak period on a free entry basis.

SAMEJIMA WINS

Justice Sets Free Japanese Whom Immigration Officials Sought to Deport

Ninetsaka Samejima can stay in Canada and officials of the Department of Immigration must free him and cannot deport him to Japan, Mr. Justice Fisher of the Supreme Court ruled in his judgment handed down to-day.

Samejima entered Canada to work as a household servant, but immigration officers found him working in a Chinatown sawmill and picked him up for deportation for violating his entrance agreement. C. H. O'Halloran, his counsel, launched habeas corpus proceedings to get the Japanese freed.

The order of deportation is defective and not one given or made in accordance with the provisions of the act and the applicant is entitled to be discharged accordingly, the justice stated in his ruling to-day.

This is the first and only one of a series of habeas corpus applications during the last month to prevent deportations to India, China and Japan that has succeeded.

THE IDEAL SEED EXHIBIT

With the world's grain show being held at Regina next year there is more than usual interest in a description of the ideal seed exhibit, as given in an address before the recent annual convention of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association by L. H. Newman, Dominion cerealist. He stated "The ideal exhibit might be defined as one consisting of kernels typical of the variety and nearly alike as possible in size, shape and colour. The whole exhibit should present a sound, vigorous, lustrous, well appearing and healthy seed free from all impurities and all evidence of disease or unsoundness."

Canada's Loveliest Child

"If you want your child to be a prize-winner," says this mother, "there is one rule you must never neglect—keep the child free from constipation."

No mother can expect that her child will escape all the ills to which children are subject, but she can do much to relieve their severity by following this rule.

If your child is constipated, has a cold, a fever, no appetite or a coated tongue, don't wait until a more serious illness results.

Baby's Own Tablets are a safe and simple remedy for constipation. They reduce simple fever, allay colic, relieve cramp, and help to relieve the distress which accompanies the cutting of teeth.

For your own peace of mind and for the sake of your child, don't be without Baby's Own Tablets in the house. 25 cents a package at any drugstore.

MRS. D. MACLEAN RECALLS EARLY INCIDENTS HERE

Frightened By Darkness as Little Girl She Caused Sensation in Hotel Rotunda

Implored By Husband Not to Repeat in Fear of Still Greater Disturbance

When Mrs. Douglas MacLean, wife of the B.K.O. producer, was a little girl—and that was not so many summers ago—she visited Victoria with her parents and after being put to bed the lights in the hotel bedroom went out for some unaccountable reason, and she naturally became nervous in the darkness.

Under such circumstances there was only one thing occupying her mind and that was to locate her parents with the least possible delay.

Clad only in her nightdress, the little girl, who later in life was to become a stage and motion picture actress, found her way into the brilliantly-lighted rotunda and a sensation was caused by her unexpected excursion among the sedate guests.

HUSBAND TELLS

This amusing girlhood incident was recalled by Mr. MacLean at the Empress Hotel yesterday in jolting his pretty wife regarding temperamental natures.

"I have implored my wife," he laughingly exclaimed, "not to repeat such a performance if the lights happen to go out as we were here, but she would undoubtedly create a much greater disturbance than was the case when she was a little girl."

LIVED IN VANCOUVER

Mrs. MacLean took the joke good-naturedly, and explained that in her girlhood she lived with her parents in Vancouver and frequently had occasion to come to Victoria, of which she has many pleasant recollections.

Her family name is Kelly, but during her career prior to her marriage, she was prominently known as Lorraine Eddy.

Mr. MacLean says he has always wanted to revisit here since he was in Victoria about six years ago, but there is no doubt that some influence was brought to bear in the decision by his wife, who looks upon herself as a British Columbian through her early associations here.

GIVES CREED FOR MODERN YOUTH

Rabbi Stern Says Revolt of Youth Old as Civilization

Vancouver, B.C., July 15.—By development of a scientific attitude modern youth is summoned to change its attitude, abolish war, industrial slavery and the mere worship of money, and last, but not least, to seek greater joy in life—spiritual joy, declared Rabbi Harry J. Stern of Montreal, speaking at a joint luncheon meeting of Vancouver service clubs yesterday.

AUTOCRATIC LENINISM

"Witness the results of the Communist revolution in Russia," Rabbi Stern said. "As I traveled about that land, some eighteen months ago, and observed the prohibitions placed upon religious education, I could not help but conclude that the apostles of Leninism are more autocratic in many respects than the apostles of Caesarism."

Could not youth and age learn how in every generation to reconstruct the forms of life without violence? There was a saving grace—a human attitude which both young and old held in esteem and which promised to unite them in orderly organization of life.

"Youth ought to investigate religion," declared Rabbi Stern. "Most theological prejudices between Christian and Jew, Catholic and Protestant, would vanish if youth would make a study of comparative religion and come to know that all religions are merely different methods which their followers use to make life livable and lovable—different trains going to the same station."

Y.W.C.A. Directors Hear Conference Report at Picnic

Members of the Y.W.C.A. board of directors held their annual picnic yesterday at the home of Mrs. T. Hammond at Shawnigan Lake. During the afternoon Miss Gene McLeod, the general secretary, reviewed the conference recently held under Y.W.C.A. auspices at Seabeck, Wash. She was most impressed by the attendance of 134 girls' reserves, comprising girls of high school age, from the Northwest, including centres in Washington, Oregon and Idaho. A key girl, usually the president of each group, on registering was given her choice of study departments, which included health education, religious training and crafts courses. Prominent visitors at the conference included Col. Raymond Robbins, noted peace advocate, and Dr. Clay Palmer, whose speech morning conducted the worship service which opened the day's proceedings.

Glorifying Yourself

By ALICIA HART

Blurred vision doesn't mean you need glasses, necessarily. Sometimes it is your liver. Sometimes it is fatigue. Sometimes it is because you have been looking intently at too many things too long.

Exercises for the eyes, plus plenty of rest between exercises, can do wonders for your eyes. Some eye specialists teach certain daily dosens for eyes that bring back wandering vision to an ability to focus.

Just exercising your eyes, without knowing why, is a dangerous thing to do. But certain exercises are good for them generally and can do only beneficial things to your vision. Here are some mild eye-exercises which will relax your eyes, if nothing else. They might actually help your focusing powers, if you did them regularly.

1. Sit still, relaxed, and fix your eyes on some small object, then switch to the electric light, the match box on the table, or some such small thing. Look at it steadily for long enough time to count five, then roll your eyes upward, without lifting your head, until you seem to be trying to look up through your forehead.

Hold that look while you breathe naturally and count five. Then bring your glance back down to the small object again. Do you see just one of it? Or do you see two? By doing this kind of exercise faithfully, several times a day, you probably will end by seeing just one, which means your vision is better.

2. Cast your eyes down, then slowly roll them out as if trying to look at your right ear, then straight across the front, then trying to look at your left ear, then work back. This rotary motion is excellent for resting the eyes. Do it slowly about five times one way, reverse, roll them the other way, then palm your eyes and try to "see black" a few seconds. I think you will find your eyes much rested.

Rolling your eyes always has been considered a coquettish act. This exercise proves that it is a good thing to keep a few such coquettish tricks right in your own bag.

Indian Powwow To Be Held at Banff

Banff, Alta., July 15.—An Indian schoolboys' band, of which the leader is also a schoolboy, and in which the students are with organs, kazoos and other noise makers, yet from which eminent critics who have heard the boys, claim real music will be produced by the band, will be one of the new features of Indian days at Banff, opening July 21. Another feature will be a septuagenarian chiefs' choir, consisting of eight chiefs and ex-chiefs, who will sing choruses taught them by the first missionaries, back in the 1860's before the coming of the Canadian railroad pathfinders.

An Indian village will be pitched on the grounds of the Banff Springs Hotel. A wooded amphitheatre will be constructed on the hotel athletic grounds and there each evening the dusky aborigines will hold their powwows and native concerts. The latter will be in the form of a musical recital. All Indian sports, as in former years, will be held at the Indian racetrack, a short distance from the hotel.

How a simple daily health habit banished a persistent ailment

She was a victim of modern life, modern foods! Nearly always tired, depressed, headache—never just sick, never entirely well. Sluggish internal conditions allowed poisons to form in her system—kept her vitality at a low ebb. Laxatives were drastic, sickening and lost their power quickly.

Then a friend—a bright-eyed, clear-skinned, young-looking woman brimming with good health—told her own health secret. Simply a dash of ENO in a glass of water every morning. To-day, this once miserable girl will tell you she has just begun to enjoy life.

ENO acts safely and naturally—a wonderful, non-habit-forming regulator.

ELECTRON TUBE REVOLUTIONIZES THEATRE LIGHTING

Switchboard Wiped Out, Lighting Director Sits in Front With Orchestra

Schmectady, July 15.—The first application in the metropolis of electron tube control of theatre lighting will be made in the new Earl Carroll theatre at Ninth Avenue and Fifth Street, to be opened in August. The control, especially designed for the new theatre by the General Electric Co. eliminates the bulky back-stage switchboard and puts instant and accurate control of all lighting at the finger tips of a "lighting director" in front of the curtain.

Six seats have been removed from the centre of the first and second rows in the theatre. In this location, surrounded by a modern railing of Alhambra metal, sits the electrician, in full evening dress. No longer a mere electrician, but instead a color conductor or director of light, he takes his rightful place beside the leader of the orchestra. Thus the control of the theatre lights is brought out from back stage to a point in front of the curtain where the lighting director can see the effects he produces, allowing more accurate and delicately adjusted effects. In addition, the control is so simplified that the mere flick of a small switch is sufficient to introduce an entirely new color or lighting scheme, or to "black out" the entire stage, house lights or both.

The new theatre will have the greatest seating capacity of any legitimate theatre in New York City. Many elaborate and novel arrangements are to be made to make it a success from a standpoint of atmosphere. The house will be decorated in black velvet and stainless steel with concealed lighting. One of the novelties of the lighting will be the use of four colors—red, blue, green and white—in the "house" or auditorium lights. One color is customary for such lights and even three is unusual, but this is the first time four have been planned.

Another novelty will be the use of cold-cathode neon tubes for illumination on the proscenium arch, with a special dimming control designed by the General Electric Company for the purpose. Heretofore it has been impossible to dim such lights and they will be the first installation of the new control.

As usual with Carroll theatrical enterprises, great quantities of light will be used. There will be fifty incandescent lighting circuits in all, thirty-four on the stage and sixteen in the house in addition to a large number of arc lighting circuits. Each incandescent circuit will govern a group of arrangement of lights and, in addition, there will be control circuits governing the various colors in these groups. Color master controls will be provided for both house and stage by means of which the various colors may be governed independently, and the various color control will also be arranged for unit control from a grand master controller. There will be grand master controls for both stage and house; appropriate "black-out" switches for any or all colors, and a single master "black-out" switch for both house and stage.

Another feature will be the black-out control of the many arc spotlights both in the arc booth and the side bridges on the stage. Thus the lighting director will be able to black these lights out at will as well as the other theatre lights, although the movement of the spotlights, when necessary, to follow the movements of characters, will be under the direction of individual operators as usual.

Some idea of the intensity and variety of lights to be employed is gained from the fact that a total of 367,000 watts is the value of all the incandescent lights which will be used. Of this figure, 231,000 watts will be incandescent lighting on the stage and 136,000 watts will be in the house proper. To these figures must be added the arc-lighting for the stage. In spite of the large amount of electricity involved for such a lighting project, the new method of control takes but a maximum of 200 watts, or four watts for each of the fifty pilot board control circuits. In other words, the control board does not handle large amounts of power directly, but through the medium of the electron tubes and the reactor system.

Full advantage of the new control system will be taken in the opening production, "The Great Gatsby," which will be provided on the stage for Mr. Carroll's friends, where they may view the actual back-stage set-up. In addition, the lighting control system will be in some manner be worked into the plot of the production itself. Mr. Carroll will be seated with the lighting director at the lighting control desk, directing the performance from that point through an intercommunicating telephone system. The lighting operator himself will also be in constant communication with the stage through a similar system.

The lighting control console will resemble a desk with raised sides and back. In approximate dimensions it will be six feet long, five feet high and three feet deep. The operator will stand at it, at the console, viewing operations on the stage over the top. While one scene or action is taking place he will be arranging the lighting set-up for the following scene, and when the moment for change arrives, a flick of a switch will introduce the new lighting scheme, and the manipulation of knobs will vary the lights as required. A black-out may be introduced between scenes when desired by a similar operation.

The technical arrangement of the system is as follows: One side of the voltage supply to each light or group of lights will pass through one winding of a saturable core reactor. The other winding of this reactor will be fed by direct current in varying amounts from a Thyatron tube. The amount of rectified current supplied by these tubes will depend on the electrical relationship between the elements of each tube, and this in turn will be determined by the manipulations of the lighting director.

MOST MUSICAL ENGLISH CITY

Manchester Given Palm By
Dr. George Dyson, R.C.M.
Professor

Canadian Press
Manchester, England, July 15.—Manchester is the most musical city in England, according to Dr. George Dyson, a member of the Associated Board of the Royal Academy of Music, who presided at the annual distribution in Manchester of certificates awarded by the board. Dr. Dyson, Mus.D. (Oxon), is master of music at Winchester College and professor of the Royal College of Music.

Dr. Dyson said: "There is no sort of question about it at all amongst the people who know anything about music. Manchester is the most musical city in England." He himself was grateful to Manchester for its music, he said, Manchester had a real interest not only in music, but in all the arts. Referring to the annual report, Dr. Dyson said that examinations were only a stage on the journey. Music was a language just like speech, and into this language some of the greatest men who ever lived, some of the most sensitive of the most sensitive men, had expressed what they thought and felt. Being musical meant that you understood and could interpret what those thoughts and feelings were.

T. B. Killip, honorary representative for Manchester of the Associated Board of the Royal Academy of Music, referred to the place of music in modern life. He said that at a time when we could sit and listen to wireless or gramophone records, and when the finest players and singers in the country, there was a temptation to listen only and neglect performance. Much could be learned by listening, but more enjoyment could be had from one's own practice.

YOUR BABY and MINE

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

BEGIN CUP FEEDINGS WHEN CHILD CAN SIT UP

Learning to drink from a cup cannot be mastered in a few lessons. Children learn this art gradually, their proficiency going up and down before it is solidified into a complete control. This is true of all learning situations. But a mother is impatient of learning. She feels that when a child has once learned to drink from a cup, he should grow better after each trial. Instead, usually the child goes completely stale on the whole thing, and necessitates further teaching.

SMALL AMOUNTS FIRST
Start cup drinking at five or six months when the child is able to sit up. Use a small cup and give only a spoonful or so of water, milk, or orange juice. Baby must learn that there are other ways of imbibing fluids than by bottle or drop by drop. Increase the amount gradually until baby can take an appreciable amount of all his liquid foods in this more advanced way. If a mother lets the child practise cup feeding from early infancy, there should never be that most unhappy spectacle of a run-around child firmly attached to bottle feedings.

"My baby of ten months weighs fifteen and three-fourths pounds," Mrs. A. E. B. writes. "She weighed nearly seven at birth. I cannot make her stay in her playpen and when she gets out, she eats dirt. What is lacking in her diet? She has a bottle, also ten drops of vitaminol daily, vegetables, beef juice, banana, cereal and custard. She can take about two ounces of milk by cup but soon gets tired and wants her bottle. What diet needs check-up?"

To-morrow: "Sand-eating. Child Needs Rearranged Diet."

THE SPORTS MIRROR

Younger Tennis Players in Canada Must Be Developed.

Short Season and No Competition Are Two Big Handicaps.

Tournament Play Is Most Efficient Way to Improve a Player.

Irishmen Can Lay No Claim to Billie Burke, U.S. Golf Champ.

ONE of the most important problems facing tennis officials in Canada to-day is the development of players. By this we mean not only those players who represent Canada on the Davis Cup team or those who are ranked among the first-ten in the Dominion, but the younger players who in the future will have to take the place of the Davis Cup men of to-day.

A very common question among tennis fans is: why does not Canada rank higher in Davis Cup competition? It is because the players of other leading nations are possessed of more natural ability? The answer to the second question is "no." The players of the other outstanding competing nations are not blessed with any more natural ability than any of Canada's leading stars.

Probably the most obvious reason for Canada's failure in Davis Cup play is due to the short season everywhere but on the Pacific Coast. This very fact alone is in itself sufficient to explain the question. With the very best of weather the average tennis season in Canadian cities is from the middle of May until October. It is undoubtedly true that in order to develop high-class tennis players it is imperative that they should play all year. In Canada after not playing all winter it takes a person some time to begin to hit the ball as where he left off last season. The result is that he has comparatively short time left in order to improve his technique from the stage at which he found himself during the previous year.

Nor is the short season the only handicap that exists and places the Canadian tennis player at such a disadvantage. It is difficult to get good competition in Canada. The result is that if a player is to develop he must go to the various tournaments in the United States. True there are a few good tournaments in Canada where a player can get competition and experience but they are few and far between. Of course one must remember that Canada's population is but one-twentieth the size of the United States and it cannot be expected that there should be as many good tennis players in Canada even should the advantage of all-year round play exist.

There is no doubt but that the best and most efficient way in which a player can improve is by tournament play. There he has an opportunity of playing with and seeing the better players in action. He can ask them questions regarding the various shots and in addition finds out the mistakes which he is making and how his game can be bettered. And he receives tournament experience and match play which in the end will make him a real tennis player. He must receive this hardening which can only be acquired through stiff competition and nothing else. No matter how much natural ability a man may possess, he will never scale the heights until he has been subjected to continuous tournament play for several seasons. Tennis players cannot be developed overnight.

A player merely because he is beaten in the early rounds of a tournament should never be discouraged. Persistence and determination are two of the outstanding factors that enable a player to reach the heights.

It has now come to light that Billie Burke, recently crowned U.S. open golf champion, is in reality Burkowski, formerly a Polish puddler in an iron foundry. Those who were ready to run up and cheer for her still cheer. One of the strange features about the U.S. open was that Von Elm, runner-up, lost nine pounds and Burke gained six. The latter smoked cigars incessantly during play. Like Tommy Armour, he is crippled, having lost a part of the middle and third finger of his left hand as the result of an accident while a youngster. He always plays with a glove on his hand and reports say he won the gallery by his showmanship.

Promoter Mullen Must Tell Why He Owes Hudkins Cash

Chicago, July 15.—Promoter Jim Mullen has been ordered by the Illinois State Athletic Commission to make a satisfactory explanation of why he owes Ace Hudkins money, with revocation of his license the penalty if he doesn't explain.

The order was given after the commission had received a letter from Clyde Hudkins, manager of the Newbrook, Wildcat, in which it was claimed that Mullen had failed to pay Ace for outpointing King Levinsky two weeks ago at Mills Stadium.

Hudkins' purse amounted to about $1,950, with three round trip tickets from Los Angeles to Chicago, as part of the contract.

Young Davies held up his end well and frequently had the crowd in an uproar as he broke from the field and pulled down a rider attempting to get away. At 9 o'clock this morning the pedalists had covered 675 miles.

BOWLERS IN B.C. EVENT SHOW CLASS

Fine Progress Made in Ninth Annual Provincial Tournament at Vancouver

Semi-finals Reached in Bowler Rink Event; J. H. McKellar Wins Novice Singles

Vancouver, July 15.—With glorious sunshine prevailing all day, further splendid progress was made yesterday in the British Columbia Lawn Bowling Association's ninth annual tournament, the Bowler rink competition being narrowed down to the semi-finals and two rounds of the season singles completed, while the Spalding (novice) singles was finished with John H. McKellar, Cedar Cottage, capturing the trophy by defeating W. Caruthers, Vancouver club, in the final on Terminal greens by fifteen shots to four.

The sixty-four rinks in the Bowler rink event each played another three games, making seven in all for every rink, a total of 192 matches being added to the 256 run off on Monday. Winners of the eight sections were: Section A, L. L. White, Terminal, with five wins and a draw; section B, J. Jenkinson, Terminal, with six wins; section C, J. F. Hutchinson, Point Grey, with five victories; section D, M. Holt, New Westminster, with six triumphs; section E, A. B. Bryson, Cedar Cottage, with seven wins; section F, J. P. Richmond, Terminal, with six wins and a draw; section G, A. Stevenson, Kerrisdale, with seven wins; and section H, G. Linton, Powell River, with six successes.

KNOCKOUT SERIES

In the first round of the knockout series, Holt disposed of Hutchinson; Stevenson beat Linton; White downed Jenkinson, and Richmond won from Bryson after an extra end.

Holt will meet Stevenson in one of the semi-finals, and White will oppose Richmond in the other on the Terminal greens. McKellar gave Caruthers little chance in the Spalding final, jumping off to an early lead and gradually increasing his advantage until he finished the match on the tenth end. The winner played splendidly, especially on short ends, for which he showed a great partiality.

WEINSTEIN IN FINE WIN OVER TOMMY FORBES

Defending Champion in Clay Court Championships Beats Local Youth 6-3 and 7-5

J. C. I. Edwards and Don Campbell, Local Favorites Win; Good Matches To-day

Playing consistent tennis, Irving Weinstein, Portland, defending champion, and first seeded player in this year's men's singles, defeated Tommy Forbes, local youngster, in straight sets 6-3, 7-5, to advance to the third round of the Victoria Clay court championships at the Kingston Street Tennis Club yesterday.

Weinstein's great accuracy coupled with fine steadiness pulled him through this match. Other favorites, including J. C. I. Edwards and Don Campbell, advanced with straight set wins, the former downing Harold Parfitt 6-1, 6-2, while Campbell downed Jack Clark 6-1, 6-1.

In the mixed doubles event Mr. and Mrs. Edwards downed the strong team of Doreen Sweeney and Ronald Kirkbride in rather easy fashion, winning at 6-1, 6-2. This match was featured by the hard hitting and accurate placements scored by John Edwards. Mrs. Edwards also turned in a great performance by keeping the ball in play splendidly, at times making some great gets.

EASY VICTORIES

The singles matches between Edwards and Parfitt and Campbell and Clark were won in rather easy fashion, with the favorites hitting with too much pace for the more inexperienced players. Reg Corfield ran into a hard match with George Phillips, and only after three hard sets was he able to win his clubmate. Corfield dropped the first set at 7-5, and took the next two at 6-4, 6-1. This match produced some of the best tennis of the present tournament, with both players hitting with nice length and pace from the baselines.

Tommy Forbes' inexperience cost him many points in his match with Weinstein, for after having his opponent in great position for a point, he would overdrive or place the ball in excellent position for his opponent to put it away. Weinstein played nice tennis in this match and will be hard to beat.

To-day's play will provide some great tennis with Fairbairn playing Schwenger, Helen Campbell playing Velda Ribbet and Miss Ribbet and Jones playing Miss Phillips and Forbes.

Yesterday's results and to-day's late draw follow:
S. L. Hole defeated W. G. Crossley, 6-2, 6-4.
I. Weinstein defeated T. Forbes, 6-3, 7-5.
S. L. Kirkbride defeated D. Wickert, 6-1, 6-4.
L. Buxtable defeated C. S. Thompson, 6-1, 6-4.
J. C. I. Edwards defeated H. Parfitt, 6-1, 6-2.
D. M. Gordon defeated C. H. Raymond, 6-4, 6-3.
Rev. Ryall defeated H. Renwick, 6-0, 6-0.
W. Hicks defeated D. Burdon-Murphy, 6-4, 6-4.
J. P. Phillips defeated W. Schroeder, 6-7, 6-0, 6-1.

Garden Will Drop Just $60,000 If Primo Does Not Meet Max Schmeling

New York, July 15.—It begins to look as though Madison Square Garden is going to take it on the chin to the tune of $60,000. If the proposed Max Schmeling-Primo Carnera title bout is abandoned, as it seems almost certain to be, the Garden will forfeit that amount to Carnera.

When Federal Judge John Knox issued the court order restraining Carnera from meeting Jack Sharkey, he also required the Garden to post a $60,000 bond to guarantee that Carnera would get the title shot at Schmeling. If the giant Italian doesn't get the bout, the Garden will forfeit its bond.

Portland, Ore., July 15.—Match play in the thirty-second annual western amateur golf tournament to-day saw thirty-one far-western contenders and a lone mid-westerner fighting for the honors.

The mid-westerner was Johnny Lehman, Chicago, defending titleholder, who did not have to participate in the two days of qualifying play.

To-day's programme called for two rounds of eighteen holes each and the elimination of all but eight of the field.

Madison Square May Have Trouble With Commission

New York, July 15.—Madison Square Garden, after defying the New York State Athletic Commission by taking the Max Schmeling-Stribling heavyweight title fight to Cleveland, through a subsidiary corporation, is having difficulty in arranging the outdoor schedule with the title fighters.

While the commission insists no retaliatory measures are being taken, the Garden failed yesterday to receive permission to stage an outdoor match between Jimmy McLarnin and Billy Petrolle, either at the Polo Grounds, August 6, or the Yankee Stadium, August 12. The commission deferred action and will take the matter up again on July 24.

Postponement of action is believed to leave too little time for preparation for the show on either August 6 or August 12.

The commission gave Prima Carnera permission to box Knute Hansen in Rochester, July 20.

Hagen Realizes His Dream of Years In Canadian Open Win

Famous United States Pro Has Been Trying To Win Title for Over Twenty Years; His Putting Accurate Was Deciding Factor in Victory Over Percy Allis Berlin Pro, Yesterday; Hagen Had 141 to Allis's 1-Birdie Three on Thirty-fifth Hole Gives Hag Victory.

Toronto, Ont., July 15.—Realizing a dream of years, Wal Hagen, Detroit professional, yesterday won the Canadian golf championship.

More than a decade ago, a well-built youngster, later to come known as the knight of the links, entered the Canadian open under the tutelage of Willis Cummings, local pro, to make debut in major tournament play. But from that day to yesterday Hagen had never succeeded in capturing the coveted crown although he rose to the heights of goldfod and won practically every other major prize offered on this continent and in Europe.

Hagen's victory in the 1931 Canadian open in which he defeated Percy Allis, stocky British pro now in Berlin, Germany, climaxed the greatest tournament ever conducted by the Royal Canadian Golf Association. A blood-tingling golfing drama during the final eighteen holes last Saturday saw the young Englishman come from behind to tie Hagen with a total score of 282, necessitating yesterday's play-off.

LARGE GALLERY
A gallery estimated at some 8,000 persons followed the international state to the close, exciting final which saw Hagen victor by one stroke. Each player smacked old man par a jolting blow. The Detroit turned in a card of 141 for the thirty-five holes, while Allis totalled 142.

Hagen's putting accuracy was the deciding factor in the thrilling duel. At the end of the first eighteen holes Allis was leading by a single stroke.

It was a resolute Hagen that came out for the all-important afternoon round. He was the striking "Beau Brummell" during the first eighteen-hole round, his attire being the latest in golf fashions, but when he appeared on the tee in the afternoon his outfit was altered and an old white hat hung loosely on his head. He did not appear to be paying much attention to the stampeding gallery, it was the victory that counted.

ALLIS SHOWS COURAGE
Hagen tied up the match on the twentieth hole, and a birdie in the twenty-first put him temporarily in the lead. He forged still farther ahead on the next, but then it was the Englishman's turn to prove his fighting mettle. On the short three-par twenty-third, Allis sent his tee shot within thirty-inches of the cup and a timely birdie again placed him on level terms. They maintained the sizzling pace and alternated in the lead until the twenty-ninth, where Hagen registered a sensational eagle to give him an advantage of two strokes.

Allis fought back courageously, and once again tied up the match on the thirty-fourth, where his trusty putter gave him a new lease of life to hole out a forty-footer. Hagen came right back on the thirty-fifth, where he sent a screeching shot down 275 yards of the fairway, then split the pin with a deadly approach and held out for a birdie against Allis's par four.

MISSES BY INCHES
The Briton, who in his previous tours around the course had found the home green much to his liking, almost continued his sensational success on this setting, but his sole attempt to send the match into another play-off missed just by a couple of inches.

Cast-off Hits Ball With Vengeance As Cardinals Just Win

Jake Flowers, Obtained By St. Louis From Brooklyn, Clouts Home Run, Double and Single To Help Defeat Former Mates 3 to 2; Cards Boost National League Lead to Five and a Half Games; Giants Lose to Chicago, 8 to 4; Athletics Take 12 to 3 Shellacking at Hands of Detroit; Yankees Break Even.

Due largely to the efforts of a cast-off shortstop and a rookie first baseman, neither of whom figured in Gabby Street's pre-season plans, the St. Louis Cardinals appear to have shaken off the latest threat to their supremacy in the National League.

Jake Flowers, obtained recently from the Brooklyn Robins, and Jim Collins, the wallowing young first sacker who took over Jim Bottomley's post, continue to play bang-up ball for the champions.

Flowers, batting in the lead-off position, hit a home run, a double and a single and scored two runs to help beat his former team-mates, the Robins, 3 to 2, in yesterday's opener at St. Louis. Collins, batting at cleanup, got one of the seven hits the Cards managed off Dazzy Vance.

A veteran, Frankie Frisch, was the ultimate hero of the game, however. It was his double in the eighth that scored Watkins with the winning run. The victory placed the champions five and a half games in front of the second place New York Giants and seven ahead of Brooklyn.

Guy Bush, young Chicago Cub right-hander, turned back the Giants, 8 to 4, in the first game of the series at Wrigley Field. Bush allowed only eight hits, four of which came in the ninth inning and produced all the Giant runs.

"PERFECT ALIBI" AT THE DOMINION IS TENSE DRAMA

Filmed in England, and With Fine Cast, Mystery Thriller
Should Be Popular Here

One of the finest British pictures ever produced, "The Perfect Alibi," is now showing in Victoria at the Dominion Theatre for three days, commencing this afternoon. It will have its final showing Friday evening.

This famous play, adapted and produced in England by Basil Dean for Associated Radio Pictures (RKO-Radio Pictures), ran for two seasons on Broadway as a stage success. On the screen it is said to be meeting with even greater acclaim.

It tells the dramatic story of two criminals, bent on vengeance against the man who convicted them twenty-seven years before. Ingratating themselves into his home and confidence, and trading on the fact that he fails to recognize them, they murder him and cover their tracks with a perfectly manufactured alibi. Each man's story hinges on the movements and whereabouts of the other at the time of the crime.

Although the audience is always aware of the identity of the murderers, even sees the crime committed, suspense is built to fever pitch by the extraordinary manipulation of the plot which author Milne has provided for the discovery and arrest of the criminals. How it is done is the big thing in "The Perfect Alibi," and audiences seem to relish the appeal to the mind which the film offers.

But "The Perfect Alibi" has more action than mental gymnastics, according to reports. And there are some excellent players in it, including C. Aubrey Smith, Warwick Ward, Dorothy Boyd and Robert Lorraine.

Counting an unbroken succession of musical show hits on Broadway and two previous screen offerings, De Sylva, Brown and Henderson number Gloria Swanson's latest U. N. I. T. E. D. picture, "Indiscreet," as their fourteenth production.

Unlike its predecessors, which were planned and written as musical presentations, the new picture is a fast moving romantic drama in which only two song numbers are used. They are "Come To Me" and "If You Hear My Love."

Miss Swanson's supporting cast in "Indiscreet," now showing at the Capitol Theatre, includes Ben Lyon, Monroe Owsley, Barbara Kent, Arthur Lake and Maude Eburne.

FREIBURG PLAY IS ANCIENT ONE

Fassnacht Family Has Always Had Role of Christus; Local Players For Mob Scenes

Seven centuries of tradition and development, and 400 years of inheritance are represented in the Freiburg passion play of Freiburg, Baden, Germany, which will be produced at Victoria during four days, July 22, 23, 24 and 25. The Passion Play is on its first American tour.

Adolf Fassnacht who portrays the Christus during His week of Passion, suffering, death, and triumph, is the eighth Fassnacht in direct descent to portray the role. Since 1760 A.D. the role has been jealously guarded as a Fassnacht heritage, each successive generation striving to improve itself in the part and bring a deeper spiritual and artistic significance to the presentation of the triumph of the Man of Sorrows.

Mr. Fassnacht is supported by a company of thirty-six principals, members of the original German company which eighteen months ago began the North American tour. Many of these have in like manner inherited their parts from preceding generations. Because no company could possibly carry the huge number of people necessary for the mob and crowd scenes which make so colorful a background for the acting of the principals, 350 local actors will be given an opportunity to appear with the noted German cast—skilled stage directors, and the company will play these "extras" well in advance of the presentation.

Authentic costumes of the ancient era, elaborate lighting and sound effects and acting of rare power make the Passion Play a colorful pageant of magnificent proportions. Telling the age-old story of Jesus simply and sincerely, its theme carries an appeal to all kinds and classes of people.

COLISEUM THEATRE

Who knows more about military operations than a military man? With this in mind, Victor Saville, the director of "The W Plan," current at the Coliseum Theatre, called in Lt. Col. Hutchinson, D.S.O. M.C., the author of this dramatic story, to supervise the military sequences. Hutchinson was a member of the British Intelligence during the war, and asserts that his exploits were almost as thrilling as those of Colonel Duncanson Grant, the leading character in "The W Plan."

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Harry Bannister, who plays the heavy in "The Girl of the Golden West," now at the Columbia Theatre, takes the parts of villains and heroes equally well. "It gives me more chance for real characterizations in most cases," he says.

CARAVAN TO VISIT CITY

Okanagan-Cariboo Trail Association Group to Come

A motor caravan representing the Okanagan-Cariboo Trail Association, will visit Victoria on July 24. It is revealed in plans for a tour to be made by the organization. While it is here, the body is expected to be entertained by some local organization before it proceeds to Seattle.

Under the leadership of Ray W. Clark, president of the association, and Capt. J. M. Walter, the field manager, the good-will motor caravan will leave Wenatchee, Wash., on Monday, July 20, for a tour of the Okanagan and Cariboo Highways. The route will lead north through the Okanagan Valley, past Kelowna, to Salmon Arm and, after lunching there, continue to Kamloops, where the second night will be spent. The route will then follow the Cariboo Highway to Vancouver, and the caravan will cross to Victoria on Friday, July 24.

Will Present Appreciation
Medallion to Recipient at Banquet in Empress

Victoria's Best Citizen for 1931 will receive the Native Sons' and Daughters' of British Columbia Appreciation Medallion at the Diamond Jubilee banquet to be held in the Empress Hotel on July 20. Mayor Herbert Anscomb will make the presentation.

The guests of the order in Victoria have again asked the co-operation of the public in sending in nominations for the award, which is prized exceptionally highly in the city. Names will be received until 5 o'clock next Wednesday evening.

In previous years the selection committee, which finally decides, shall receive the award has chosen figures of considerable popularity. Never has its choice been questioned. This year it is expected the recipient of the medallion will be as meritorious as those of former seasons.

All nominations will be treated as confidential. They must be in writing and addressed to the Appreciation Award Committee, 873 Humboldt Street.

MANY FEATURES IN TRAVELERS' FROLIC EVENTS

Lacrosse and Baseball Games,
Water Carnival and Other Activities Planned

With only two days to go before the commencement of the B.C. Diamond Jubilee Celebrations, the committees of the United Commercial Travelers are busy completing arrangements for the big entertainment programme which will be directly sponsored by that body. On Friday and Saturday many outstanding and popular events will be staged.

One change has been made in the schedule of events. The lacrosse match, previously scheduled for 10.30 o'clock, has been delayed until 4.15 o'clock in the afternoon in order to give place to the baseball game in the morning.

The tickets issued by the U.T.C. contain passes to the lacrosse match and in order to prevent disappointment to those who have set aside that time arrangements have been made for the ticket to pass the holder into either game. Public interest has been stirred in lacrosse through the revival of the typically Canadian game in Victoria. The match is to be played between a team representing Victoria and one from the Home Oil Company.

OTHER FEATURES
In addition to passing the purchaser in to any miniature golf course or bowling alley in Victoria the ticket is also good for entrance to the Royal Theatre, where both nights will see a programme put on by the popular concert party from the H.M. Dragon and the display of Indian club juggling and juggling by Ali Akram Al Thakar.

One of the main features on the ticket is a pass to the Crystal Garden, where swimming, diving, water polo will be seen. The ticket also carries dancing privileges on both floors from 9 to 12 o'clock. In the afternoon, the display of water carnival the Victoria Girls Band will play, while later on special turns will be put on by puppets, acrobats, and a singing beauty contest will be judged on Saturday evening, with entries registered from all over Vancouver Island.

MYSTERY ORE RICH IN SILVER

Edmonton, July 15.—The mystery ore body discovered by T. G. Donovan, Detroit geophysicist, at Great Bear Lake, contains silver, it is announced. The sample test by the University of Alberta experts was declared to be of almost unbelievable richness, assaying $1,035.65 to the ton.

The experts were somewhat cautious in commenting on the discovery, declaring that considerable prospecting would be necessary to discover the extent of the body before any definite statement could be made as to the value of the find.

THE PASSION PLAY

By CLEM DAVIES

When I was privileged to take a party last summer to witness the Passion Play in Germany, I little realized that a similar performance, almost as large in magnitude, in staging and scenery, and equally as well performed, would ever come to Victoria.

Some months after my return we were called upon at the Temple office and the offer was made to us to present the Passion Play under the auspices of the Victoria City Temple. After careful consideration we decided to embrace the opportunity. The difficulties we have encountered, in bringing this huge aggregation across the continent, have been great. We have made the most searching enquiries into the character and ability of the players and we are glad to announce that Victoria has in store a great treat, judging by the magnificent reports we have received first hand from responsible civic and religious leaders in cities where the play has already been held on this continent. Our first consideration is to bring this play here to give a mighty spiritual and religious uplift to our fellow citizens. Secondly, we know that all lovers of pure drama will be entranced not only by the acting of the players themselves, but by the gorgeous stage setting. The new exposition building at the Willoes is truly made for the play. Its acoustic properties are just right. The stage will be equally as large as the Oberammergau setting. Fifteen hundred costumes will give a wealth of color and pagantry which will be a delight to young and old; and the dramatic art of Adolph Fassnacht, who enacts the part of Christus, will be an unforgettable memory to those who witness his portrayal of a play initiated over 300 years prior to the Oberammergau drama.

We sincerely inform our friends of our desire to render a spiritual blessing through the means of this play as to the matter of finance. We may say that our expenses have risen to such proportions that we can only hope that we shall not lose too much money in presenting the performance. It is the greatest effort the City Temple has undertaken and we earnestly ask the people of Victoria to support this great civic event by being present, at least once, during the four days.

Three carloads of staging, costumes and scenery will come to Victoria next Tuesday. One item of $23,000 of electrical equipment alone, will suggest the magnitude of the production. All the advance agents for the play speak in tones of reverence of Adolph Fassnacht, showing how impressive is his influence for good in the work he does. The cast is composed of consecrated men and women, who are all consummate artists. We are employing union stage hands, union musicians and contributing one item which may be mentioned of $800 for rental. Most of the money will go in expenses which will be paid to labor right here in our city.

We have reduced the prices to as popular a figure as we could so that as many as possible might see it, and at the same time meet our expenses on the proposition. The play will give stimulus to every church and creed in the city and will strengthen the arm of the clergy of all denominations in their great work. The children will be specially delighted. I can assure all my friends that no racial antagonism can possibly be engendered by this noble presentation. Many will be surprised to learn that the first two presentations on this continent were offered by Jews and two Jewish organizations have contracted for the play in California. I assure my Jewish friends that no feeling in any way will be raised against them through this medium. A prominent Jew, whose name is well known in the city and who is generally regarded as speaking for Jewry here, has assured Ex-almernan

Victoria, it has been my privilege to present to our citizens many things which have pleased them. In offering this event, under the auspices of the beloved institution of which I have the honor to be leader, I feel that this is our supreme achievement.

May I say that the "first night" will be as good as the last and urge my fellow citizens to attend on the "first night." If we can fill the house on the first night we shall have no anxiety about meeting expenses. The box office for the seat sale will open on Thursday morning at the Fashion Bootery, 743 Yates Street.

Guardians of Safety

EVERY hour of the day or night you have a thousand helpers guarding your precious treasures against harm. Yourself, your loved ones, and your property, are under the watchful care of police and fire departments. Their traffic signals guide you safely through the congestion and difficulties of street traffic. Their alarm boxes are ready to bring you instant aid in case of fire or threatened danger to life or property. These vital signal systems form a strong web of protection over the Dominion's cities. Much of the police and fire signal equipment of Canada—from the traffic signal or alarm box on the street-corner to the complicated central office apparatus—is made by Northern Electric Company, Limited.

DAILY HEALTH SERVICE

Perspiration Is Frequent Cause Of Summer Skin Infections

Repeated Washing, Use of Creams, Powders and Porous Clothing Help Control Irritation

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Physicians who practice in tropical zones insist that the constant high temperature has the tendency to hasten maturity and to stimulate the glands of internal secretion. It is pointed out by Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, that Eskimo girls mature very early. The reason for this is that they live for six months of the year in huts which become so hot and so humid that the conditions resemble those that exist in the tropics. Men from the temperate zone who go to the tropics find very soon a stimulation of the endocrine glands. This wears off promptly, however, to be followed in several months by a depressive action. Most people notice a similar effect in the summer season. When summer weather first comes on, glandular action is stimulated but tends to be depressed later.

Because of the constant perspiration and moisture of the skin, people are more likely in hot weather to have skin infections than in cold weather. These take the form of ordinary blackheads and pimples, but there are also considerable amounts of what are called fungus infections, resulting in soft places between the toes, in the groin and similar places where skin surfaces touch, and also in the condition commonly called "athlete's foot," which spreads rapidly to other parts of the body.

Any irritation of the skin in hot weather is best controlled by repeated washing and by the use of appropriate creams and powders to prevent irritation and rubbing of adjacent surfaces. Irritations break the surface of the skin and make it easier for bacteria to enter.

The use of porous clothing tends to keep the surface of the skin dry and in that way to prevent the maceration that comes with constant moisture.

Because of the effects of various chemicals on skin that has been irritated, cosmetic preparations must be used with greater care in the summer than in the winter.

Infants and small children must be kept cool in summer, but care must be taken to see to it that they are properly covered at night, particularly with changes of weather during the night. Colds are not frequent in the warm season, but the likelihood of catching cold is always present and resistance is certainly enhanced by proper protection. In days of excessive heat the small child may be clad merely in a diaper and allowed to lie in its crib in the shade near the open window.

BEDBUG CONTROL

The control of insects is an ever present problem for the householder, and as correspondence received by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa indicates that infestations of bedbugs are causing concern in certain parts of Canada, reference is made to departmental bulletin 112 "Household Insects and Their Control," prepared by the entomological branch. Hydracetic acid gas and superheated steam are indicated in this bulletin as the quickest and most effective means of getting rid of this bothersome insect while liberal spraying with gasoline, kerosene, or kerosene-pyreneum solution, though slower, are quite effective. Complete instructions for control measures for household insects of all kinds are included in the bulletin referred to, which will be mailed upon request to the publications branch of the department at Ottawa without charge.

John Wanamaker Had An Idea

ONE DAY a great inspiration came to John Wanamaker, merchant genius of his time. By marking his prices in plain figures he made many new friends, eliminated suspicion, assured fair treatment to everyone. Nowadays almost every merchant follows his example.

Wouldn't it be a fine thing if every funeral director did the same? Hayward's have long employed this helpful practice, with the result that is easy for every family to select an appropriate service well within its means. Visit our public Advisory Department at any time, or write for our booklet, "Before Sorrow Comes."

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)

Winnipeg, July 15.—The market continues to act nervous and erratic within a narrow price range, but only a small featureless trade was passing with only a negligible export business again worked overnight. Seaboard reports sales at 300,000 bushels, but mostly hard winters.

The market opened about half cent lower, but recovered and advanced 1/2 to 3/4 over the close last night. From this upturn the market broke back about one cent and only made slight recoveries. Chicago was again a moderate seller here on spreads, being the main cause of the decline, but the demand was very thin, although one large house was a fair buyer of July on the break.

Demand for cash wheat was very quiet. Some No. 4 and 1 hard traded at quarter better, otherwise spreads generally were unchanged with no pressure from holders. Flour business continues very quiet.

Broomhall reported that advices from Russia stated that three weeks of hot dry weather had been experienced and will probably reduce crops below last year's total, and if weather continued unfavorable crop will be well below a year ago. From Italy comes the news that the quality of late wheat has suffered from the June hot spell, but the quality of earlier crops is generally good.

Liverpool cables stated that market was dull and easy owing to unsettled financial situation and awaiting developments. Market firmed up near the finish in sympathy with upturn in Chicago. Winnipeg closed 1/2 to 3/4 higher.

Coarse grains—These markets were steady and firm. Shippers did a little business in barley and corn for export and Eastern Canada trade. Little pressure on these markets.

Oats closed unchanged to half higher. Barley 1/2 lower to 1/2 higher, and rye 1/2 higher.

The Melody Girl

"I won't have her," Irene burst out. "She's impossible; you should have heard the things she said to me yesterday."

"Probably nothing but the truth," her father retorted. He was in an irritable mood this morning; due very likely to his badly cooked dinner of the night before. "If you women would stop arguing and fighting all the time and pay more attention to—"

"Your meals," his wife added for him. "You're just like all men—thinking of your stomach all the time. You used to be different." (That usually got him.) "I declare," she began to cry, "I don't know what to do," and her husband's habitual meekness was quickly restored.

"There, there, Mother, I know you have a hard time," he soothed, "but Beryl's a great help to me; you aren't going to let Irene disappoint her like that, are you?"

CHAPTER IX

"I have to think of my voice," Irene answered for her mother. Beryl irritates me. I'd be a nervous wreck before I got to the studio if she went along."

"Then why did you tell her she could go with you?" her father asked. Irene shrugged. "I had a weak moment, I guess."

"Humph. Seems to me I heard Beryl saying something about buying a ringside seat," Mr. Everett remarked. Irene turned to her mother. "There, you see!" she cried. "She's always making fun of me! And I won't stand for it!"

Mr. Everett began to sniffle again. "Oh, I guess she didn't mean to make fun of you," Mr. Everett declared hastily. "That's just Beryl's way—to joke. It helps a lot with the cranky customers."

"Can't you think of anything but business?" his wife wailed.

"Lord, I wish I had some business to think about," he complained. "The way things are now—"

Irene jumped up from the table. "I can't eat in an atmosphere of bickering," she announced indignantly. "Poor child," her mother muttered as Irene stalked out of the room. "Why do you upset her so, Henry? You know she's high-strung and delicate—a real artist."

Mr. Everett was contrite. "I didn't mean to spoil her breakfast," he apologized. "Guess I'll be getting back to my room. Never mind pouring any more coffee for me." He got up and walked over to a peg on which hung his hat.

His wife hesitated a half moment, then spoke out boldly. "You'd better keep Beryl at the store," she advised. "Tell her you mean her there."

Mr. Everett flinched from one foot to the other. "She'd know I was doing it for a reason," he objected. "You can't fool Beryl."

"Well, you keep her there just the same," she ordered, with a finality in her tone that left no room for further argument. He went away, mumbling that he didn't like it.

And as he expected Beryl laughed at him when he clumsily attempted to detain her at the store.

"I suspect you've been getting a load of Irene's impression of a prima donna," she said to him. "I had a hunch she'd try to resign on me and I'm prepared for it. Don't worry. I'll tell mother what a chance you had to hold me here."

She went away laughing and waving goodbye to him. And he thought fearfully of what his wife would have to say if she could read his mind at that and rant she bore a declaration of war that was more effective than words.

"What are you doing with my blouse?" Irene screamed as Beryl walked over to the sink.

Beryl smiled at her. "Why, my dear," she said pleasantly, "I mean to wash it for you, and reach for the dishpan."

Irene flew over to grab the garment but Beryl swung it out of her reach. "Mother, don't let her wet it!" Irene screamed.

"Beryl!"

"She'll keep her bargain with me," Beryl interrupted her mother, "or I'll make a rain check out of her blouse."

Irene's eyes were caught by the fine pleating of the neck ruffle as Beryl held the blouse aloft. She could never pleat to go that. And the thought of standing over the ironing board for an hour while she tried it drove her frantic.

"Put it down, Beryl," her mother implored.

"When she says I'm going with her," Beryl returned firmly. "I washed and ironed this thing as the price of my admission to the show and I'll see the show—or get a refund."

"All right, you can go," Irene capitulated.

Beryl handed the blouse to her. "You'd better take it upstairs before change my mind and decide I don't want to go," she said, and Irene hastily followed the suggestion.

Automatically Beryl began to gather up the breakfast dishes. She'd long ago learned that Irene would help their mother and that if she too refused her mother would do the dishwashing alone.

Beryl fluttered around more or less helplessly. Beryl knew she had something on her mind and finally it came out in a burst of querulousness.

"Look," pouring fresh coffee preparatory to finishing her interrupted morning meal.

There was a pout of injured feelings on her pretty face, a "Well, pet me if you like, but I'm annoyed just the same" expression in her blue eyes and a smug satisfaction with herself that made Beryl want to shake her.

Instead the older girl seated herself at the table with the easy, unconscious grace that was characteristic and remarked casually: "So you've decided I shan't go to New York with you?"

Irene cocked her head sideways and pursed her lips. Then she reached for the cream jug and poured some of its contents into the cup of coffee.

Calmly Beryl reached across the table and took the cup for herself.

"You have a nerve!" Irene said furiously.

"Now, now, girls, don't quarrel," Mrs. Everett intervened and rushed forward with a second cup.

"I'm starved," Beryl said to her mother.

"You'll be out of luck if you didn't bring something with you," Mrs. Everett taunted. "Mother's just cooked the last of the bacon and eggs for me."

Beryl looked at her mother. "You'll have to eat with me," she said weakly. "There was enough to begin with, but—"

Beryl broke in with an understanding laugh. "But Irene had a fit of temper and couldn't eat and—all the rest of it. Well, let it go. Give me some toast."

"I've got some watermelon preserve," her mother offered in amends for the lack of more substantial fare.

Irene smirked. "I lunched on those last night. I had to have something after that awful dinner."

Mr. Everett gasped. "You don't mean you ate the whole jar?"

"Well, not the jar—just the preserves. There wasn't much."

Beryl stared meaningfully at Irene's figure. "Soft white curves, like misted sunlight, like misted flowers," she said softly. Then, abruptly, "It's a pity flowers fade so quickly, isn't it?"

Irene flushed and Beryl noticed that when her mother placed a plate of bacon and eggs before her the girl ate the food with small relish.

Beryl nibbled the thin dry toast cautiously, then she appeared to enjoy ment. But when her mother brought a piece of cheese and a bric-a-brac was glad Irene had no desire for the

"So I'm not going to New York with you?" she asked after the last crumb of the sweet roll had been consumed.

"I really couldn't be annoyed," Irene replied.

Beryl got to her feet. "Well," she said with a pleasant inflection, "in that case I'll have time for a little laundry work."

Irene's glance followed her in uneasiness as she swung out of the kitchen into the front hall. Beryl's attitude puzzled her for mostly her half-sister fought for her rights. She did not go to hear what more Beryl might have to say about the matter, but staying in the kitchen availed her nothing, for presently Beryl returned. And while she did not come to rave and rant she bore a declaration of war that was more effective than words.

"What are you doing with my blouse?" Irene screamed as Beryl walked over to the sink.

Beryl smiled at her. "Why, my dear," she said pleasantly, "I mean to wash it for you, and reach for the dishpan."

Calmly Beryl reached across the table and took the cup for herself.

"You have a nerve!" Irene said furiously.

"Now, now, girls, don't quarrel," Mrs. Everett intervened and rushed forward with a second cup.

"I'm starved," Beryl said to her mother.

"You'll be out of luck if you didn't bring something with you," Mrs. Everett taunted. "Mother's just cooked the last of the bacon and eggs for me."

Beryl looked at her mother. "You'll have to eat with me," she said weakly. "There was enough to begin with, but—"

Beryl broke in with an understanding laugh. "But Irene had a fit of temper and couldn't eat and—all the rest of it. Well, let it go. Give me some toast."

"I've got some watermelon preserve," her mother offered in amends for the lack of more substantial fare.

Irene smirked. "I lunched on those last night. I had to have something after that awful dinner."

Mr. Everett gasped. "You don't mean you ate the whole jar?"

"Well, not the jar—just the preserves. There wasn't much."

Beryl stared meaningfully at Irene's figure. "Soft white curves, like misted

Many Are the Difficulties That Must Be Met By Those Who Follow the Profession of Being a Woman That Any Unborn Babe Should Think Long and Well Before Embarking on It

Being a woman has always been the most arduous profession that any human being could follow, but year by year it grows more complicated and so difficult it is no wonder that so many girls lack the courage to attempt it and turn up their little heels and die in infancy.

To be a man is a simple proposition. It requires no particular gift nor talent nor special technique. He has only to be as nature made him, and if nature didn't turn out a job that was anything to brag about it doesn't matter. He is still a man. And if he is a he-man he can get into the movies.

But with a woman it is entirely different. She has to be a compendium of all the arts and graces and virtues even to get by. Just think of what is expected of even the common garden variety of woman! She must be a good-looker and thin as a reed, no matter what sort of a face figure God handed her. She must have brains under her permanent wave but keep them carefully concealed. She must be a vaudeville entertainer who can keep the tired business man amused. She must dress like a fashion plate yet run up no bills. She must be a voted mother yet never smell of the nursery. She must be a prestidigitator to can play the piano with one hand and perform on the gas range with the other.

In a word, a woman is expected to be a lady love, a chum, a vamp, a servant, a seamstress, a trained baby nurse and sick nurse, a housewife, a perpetual alibi for her husband, a financial agent, a commissary department, a chef and a standing excuse, and even at that no man thinks that she is anything to write home to mother about.

It would seem impossible that any one individual could possess all of the talents demanded of a woman and perform all the activities expected of her. It is strange to say, there are millions of wives and mothers who give this marvelous performance of womanhood as just part of the day's work and then they have been careless enough to let themselves get a little old and red. Or perhaps they haven't kept their hands manicured and in a nice useable condition. Or perchance the pie had a thought too much sugar in it or something like that.

Of course, if women could specialize in their professions as men do in theirs, it would be a lot easier on them and they could make greater successes. But a woman can't say I will be a cook or I will be a mother or I will be the best-dressed woman in my set or I will be a bridge shark, as a man can say I will be a criminal lawyer or a throat specialist or a bond salesman. She has to be a jill of all trades, and so it is no wonder that very often she turns out pretty slap-dash work and acquires nervous prostration to boot, sprinting from the butcher shop to the symphony concert and walking the baby with the colic while she tries to think up a few wise cracks with which to divert hubby when he returns home in the evening.

For, alas, many women lack versatility. They could be good cooks or good society ladies. They could shine either in the nursery or the drawing-room. They could step out to night clubs with husband and stay at home and keep children covered. But it is when they try to do them all at the same time that they get things gummed up.

These are, however, the ancient drawbacks to the profession of being a woman, and the feminine sex has coped with them so long that it has learned how to handle them with more or less efficiency. It is the new problems arising out of the changed conditions of modern society and modern inventions that have added more handicaps to the woman business.

In olden times, for instance, marriage was the chief end of woman, and no matter where a girl started out she knew she would land at the altar. Then a young woman had to sex her mind trying to decide whether she would marry a man or a career. There wasn't any career and she took the man, and at saved a lot of wear and tear on her nerves and kept her from lying awake at night wondering whether a poor husband is better than a good job or vice versa.

Then marriage was a stable institution. When people got married they stayed married, and a woman didn't have to give her best energies and most of her time and thoughts to keeping her husband vamped. Men were comparatively simple creatures with few wants in wives, and if a woman was amiable and pleasant to live with and a first-class cook and looked after her household and her children, her husband was satisfied.

Husbands didn't expect them to be kept thrilled or for their wives to flatter them or for their wives to remain a permanent twenty, but nowadays a man links he has a perfect right to expect after flappers if his wife hasn't discovered the Fountain of Perpetual Youth and bitten a chunk out of the Blarney Stone. And if she doesn't give him palpitation of the heart every time he comes near her he feels that she has been a failure in the job he has so kindly given her.

These are but a few of the many difficulties that must be met by those who follow the profession of being a woman. There are many others. So many, indeed, and so difficult is the profession that any unborn babe should think long and well before embarking on it. DOROTHY DIX.

Life On an Ocean Liner

What is it like to travel on an ocean liner? That question is often asked, but is not entirely easy to answer. The life on a ship is to give a few ideas learned during my ocean voyages.

In the old days, sailing ships rocked and sea-sawed a great deal. The modern steamship is steady—not so steady as dry land, but almost so. On stormy seas, the traveler may feel a little rocking, but most of the time the only movement noted is "vibration."

Books from the ship's libraries. They may find a shady place on the deck, and read hour after hour—sitting in deck-chairs.

The traveler does not want to spend all his time reading, however. He must have exercise. Passengers walk and walk and walk around the deck. They are able to breathe the fresh salt air of the sea, but they have little change of scenery.

Sea and water are always to be seen from the outer decks; now and then another ship passes by, usually at a distance of several miles. Once in a great while, the back of a whale is seen, or a school of porpoises. The porpoises keep leaping from the water, and cause much excitement.

Games are played by ocean travelers. Chief among them are "shuffle board" and "deck tennis." In shuffle board, the player uses a kind of paddle to shove a wooden disk over the deck toward a space with sections numbered from "1" to "10." His opponent shoves a similar disk to the same place, trying to knock the first disk away from a scoring position and to leave his own disk there.

Deck tennis is played with a rubber ring instead of with a ball. The ring is tossed back and forth, over a net. If it is tossed outside the marked space, the player who threw it loses a point. If a player fails to catch a properly tossed ring, his opponent is given a point. It is fun to play—if you do not slip and bang your knee on the hard deck.

Saanich Enjoyed High School Attendance, Dr. D. Berman Informs Trustees

Remarkable improvement in attendance at the Saanich schools was achieved during the last school year. Dr. David Berman, school medical officer, yesterday evening informed the Saanich School Board, in his annual report on the health of the pupils. The average attendance throughout the year had been 93.98 per cent, which was eleven per cent higher than that of any year previous to the health supervision of the schools having been taken over by the Saanich Health Centre.

Noting that Saanich had experienced only 160 cases of infectious disease during the year, Dr. Berman reported that those among school children had been limited to ninety instances.

With an attendance of 2,063 pupils at the schools, 2,017 had been examined by Dr. Berman. There had also been 2,335 home visits during the twelve months. Inspecting the keen supervision given the children, Dr. Berman said there had been more than four inspections of each child during the school year. The number being 8,643. There had been 2,832 weight records taken, 2,690 children had been measured and 1,660 had been tested for eyesight.

Dr. Berman thanked the board for the co-operation accorded him in his work, and was in turn congratulated by the trustees upon the excellence of the results attained.

TARIFF BOARD BILL IS BEFORE THE SENATE

Ottawa, July 15.—The Senate yesterday gave the second reading to the bill creating a tariff board and listed the measure for consideration in committee to-day. There was no division yesterday, but considerable discussion preceded second reading.

Senator Dandurand, leader of the opposition in the Senate, said he was surprised to see reports that Liberal senators had decided to oppose the bill. It would be considered in the same way as other legislation, he said. He suggested it would have been possible to alter the old tariff board last September instead of dismissing it. He did not think the definite term of office (ten years) would appeal to many.

Rt. Hon. George P. Graham, who organized and was chairman of the first tariff advisory board, warned the government not to give authority to the Department of National Revenue to change the tariff. Changes made this year, he said, were a considerable mess.
